Pontiff Sees Slight Chances Of Early Peace, Roosevelt Told

Letter Says 'Obstacles' are Becoming 'More Difficult'

LAUDS EFFORTS

Hopes 'Principles of Justice and Equity' Will Dictate Peace

Washington—(AP)—Pope Pius XII advised President Roosevelt today that the immediate chances for peace were reduced to a "slight probability" by "stubborn obstacles" which "become daily more difficult to surmount."

The pontiff called upon the "friends of peace" to "visualize" the seriousness of these obstacles and the improbability of cessation of war "so long as the present state of the opposing forces remains essentially unchanged."

These expressions and a hope for the eventual attainment of peace were made in a letter to the president. The letter, made public simultaneously here and in Rome, was delivered to the White House by Archbishop Ciconnani, the apostolic delegate in Washington.

It was a reply to a communication of Dec. 23 in which Mr. Roosevelt disclosed he was sending to the pope a personal representative, Myron C. Taylor, to assist in "our parallel endeavors for peace."

"It is," the pontiff declared, "an exemplary act of fraternal and hearty solidarity between the new and the old world in defense against the chilling breath of aggressive and deadly godless and anti-Christian tendencies, that threaten to dry up the fountainhead, whence civilization has come and drawn its strength."

In such circumstances, the pope said, using the plural pronoun as all papal utterances, "we shall find a special satisfaction in receiving a personal representative from Mr. Roosevelt."

His holiness chose to ignore criticism by some Protestants in this country that Taylor's mission appeared to be a step toward a union of church and state. Taylor, now in Florida, has not indicated when he will sail.

Plea For Future

Pope Pius vaguely placed in the future the time when peace might be achieved. He wrote:

"When that day dawns—and we would like to hope that it is not too far distant—on which the roar of battle will lapse into silence and there will arise the possibility of establishing a true and sound peace established by the principles of justice and equity, only he will be able to discern the path that should be followed who unites with high political power a clear understanding of the voice of humanity along with a sincere reverence for the divine precepts of life as found in the gospel of Christ."

"Only men of such moral stature will be able to create the peace, that will compensate for the incalculable sacrifices of this war and clear the way for a comity of nations, fair to all, efficacious and sustained by mutual confidence."

Obstacles Growing

"We are fully aware of how stubborn the obstacles are that stand in the way of attaining this goal, and how they become daily more difficult to surmount."

"And if the friends of peace do not wish their labors to be in vain, they should visualize distinctly the seriousness of these obstacles, and the consequently slight probability of immediate success so long as the present state of the opposing forces remains essentially unchanged."

President Roosevelt sent nearly identical letters last Christmas-time to the pope, to Dr. George A. Butler, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, as a Protestant leader, and to Rabbi Cyrus Adler, president of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

In the letters, Mr. Roosevelt said it was well to encourage a "closer association between those in every part of the world—those in religion and those in government—who have a common purpose."

Slays Woman and Child, Then Is Shot to Death

Chelsea, Mass.—(AP)—Threatened with disciplinary action, Patrolman John A. Price, 46, forced his way into the home of his superior, Sergeant Herbert J. Hannabury, 44, early today, shot Hannabury's wife and daughter and then fell dead himself from a blast from Hannabury's service pistol.

Mrs. Helen Hannabury, 44, died instantly with bullets in the head and chest, and doctors held no hope for her 12-year-old daughter, Virginia, who was shot through the head.

NAVAL HERO MEDALS FOR SQUALUS RESCUE DIVERS

Navy medals of honor for "extraordinary heroism" in the rescue of survivors of the submarine Squalus were awarded in Washington, D. C., to four divers by Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison. It was the largest group presentation since the World war. This picture shows Edison placing a medal on William Badders of Annapolis. The others shown are (left to right after Badders) John Mihalowski, Worcester, Mass.; Orson L. Crandall, New London, Conn.; and James Harper McDonald, Hoehnes, Colo.

Rome Government Approves Large Military Budget

Cabinet Votes About 542 Million for Year Beginning July 1

Rome—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's government today approved Italy's biggest military budget since the World war to meet possible dangers growing out of the current European war during the coming year.

The cabinet authorized the expenditures of 10,846,000,000 lire (about $542,000,000) for military purposes in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

The enlarged military expenditures represented an actual increase of about $75,000,000 over the current military budget, which has been progressively increased by emergency appropriations to about $469,583,200.

The total 1940-41 budget, which the cabinet approved, was set at $4,896,000,000 lire (about $1,745,000,000), with a deficit of about 6,000,000,000 lire ($300,000,000).

A cabinet statement that the large arms appropriations for the army, navy and air force were designed to "meet the undeniable necessity of placing the armed forces in a condition which will assure the greatest efficiency for any event."

Italy, a high authority said, meanwhile, will be absent from the Balkan entente conference at Belgrade Feb. 2, not even sending an observer, as some had expected her to do.

The Italian decision, along with reports that Hungary and Bulgaria also would refrain from sending observers, has narrowed the meeting's scope, in the view of diplomatic circles.

Italy's desire to avoid any contact with the entente of Rumania, Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece, which long has been considered as under French tutelage, was understood to be the reason for Rome's hands-off attitude.

Gambling Quiz Figure Is Arrested in Toledo

Detroit—(AP)—Dr. Martin B. Robinson, sought since Wednesday by Detroit police and investigators for the one-man grand jury inquiring into gambling and police graft charges, was arrested at 2 a. m. today in Toledo and returned here before dawn.

Robinson explained his disappearance by saying, "I needed a rest. I had too much on my mind."

Two of the holdup men entered the institution from a side door at 4:20 p. m. and a third came in at the front door. The fourth man ran at the wheel of a grey 1937 four-door sedan in which they escaped toward Hammond and Chicago.

'Handouts' From Government Won't Cure Plight of Poor, F.D.R. Tells Social Planners

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt told a group of social planners last night that "the federal treasury has some bottom to it" and that "mere handouts" would not cure the plight of America's poorer children and their families.

Average incomes of the poor should be raised, he said, and each community should be taxed according to its ability to pay.

Mr. Roosevelt said he agreed with members of the White House Conference on Children in a Democracy that "we still have much to do" and that "public assistance of many kinds is necessary."

About 400 conference members, overcrowding the east room of the White House, heard the president stray frequently from his prepared text and interpolated so much additional that he ran 13 minutes over his scheduled 20-minute radio period.

"I have been speaking practically extemporaneously," he said at one point.

Complex Report

He blamed this on the size and complexity of the conference's report, saying it was like a mail-order house catalog.

The president added that when he was jotting down his notes, "I said to myself, 'this is going to be the most dreadful speech I ever delivered.'"

After reminding his audience of the treasury limits, he added "that mere grants in aid constitute no permanent solution to the problem."

"We should address ourselves," he said, "to two definite policies: 'First, to increase the average of incomes in the poorer group, in the poorer areas of the nation, and, secondly, to an insistence that in every community and in every state and in the District of Columbia they should pay taxes in accordance with their ability to pay.'"

His audience applauded.

Eulogizes Borah

In the course of his address, he eulogized as "a great American" the late Senator Borah, who wrote the 1912 law creating the children's bureau, sponsor of the White House conference.

He said he had read John Steinbeck's book on the dust bowl misery and the late Senator Borah, who wrote the 1912 law creating the children's bureau, sponsor of the White House conference.

There are 500,000 Americans that live in the covers of that book. I'd like to see the Columbia basin (to be irrigated after 1942) devoted to the care of 500,000 Americans of 'The Grapes of Wrath' migratory families."

Declared he'd like to advertise on the front pages of the newspapers "the most backward school districts" so that "those areas would get the sympathy, the understanding and the help for improving those worse conditions."

Asserted the conference had sustained him in his often-repeated statement that one-third of the nation is ill-housed, ill-clothed and ill-fed, adding that "we are saying that we are going to improve this."

Declared that adequate national defense demanded "educated, healthy and happy citizens," as well as munitions.

Dempsey is a member of the temporarily defunct committee, which has been investigating un-American activities for the last two years. He told newsmen an "understanding" had been reached among committee members whereby they will "take a new policy."

"We're not going to let one or two members and a couple of office boys run things again," Dempsey declared.

C. A. Babcock, Head of Paper Company, Dies

Heart Disease Fatal to Prominent Neenah Industrialist

FUNERAL SUNDAY

Was Vice President of Bank; Head of North Shore Club

Neenah—C. A. Babcock, 71, 413 E. Wisconsin avenue, prominent Neenah industrialist, died at his home at about 7 o'clock last night. Mr. Babcock suffered a heart attack Thursday afternoon.

Born in Kaukauna Nov. 21, 1868, Mr. Babcock was first employed by the Union Bag and Paper company, and came to Neenah in 1889. He was associated with the Whiting-Plover Paper company and the Wisconsin River Paper and Pulp company, and in 1911 he acquired controlling interest in the latter concern. At that time he was named president and treasurer of the firm, holding those positions until his death.

When Mr. Babcock acquired the Wisconsin River Paper and Pulp company, he disposed of his interests in the Whiting-Plover company.

Bank Officer

The industrialist also has been associated with the First National bank of Neenah and was elected a director in October, 1905 and vice president in January 1920. He was vice president of the Merchants and Manufacturing Hotel association.

Mr. Babcock was president of the North Shore Golf club and a member for 49 years of the Elisha Kent Kane Lodge, No. 61, F. and A. M. He also was a member of the Chicago club, and chairman of the board of trustees of the Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. K. B. Mory, Neenah; a brother, Guy O. Babcock, Wisconsin Rapids; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 3:30 Sunday afternoon at the home with the Rev. A. A. Chambers, rector of St. Thomas' Episcopal church, in charge. Burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Russians Report Finns Defeated

Claim Battalion Wiped Out and Say Reds Gain on Isthmus

Helsinki, (AP)—Strong Russian attacks have been flung back both on the Karelian isthmus and north of Lake Ladoga, the Finnish command's communique reported today.

Moscow—(AP)—The Russian army reported today it had "annihilated" a Finnish battalion on the north shore of Lake Ladoga and inflicted "numerous casualties" on the enemy on the Karelian isthmus.

A communique from the Leningrad headquarters, distributed by Tass, Soviet official news agency, declared:

"In the Petrozavodsk direction, in the area of Kiteila, our reconnoitering group annihilated an enemy battalion which left 26 machine guns on the spot."

The report added "the enemy suffered numerous casualties" in clashes of advanced units on the Isthmus front. It said Soviet bombers raided military objectives in a number of areas.

(The Finns said fighting continued on the Salla front where Finnish forces and Swedish volunteer air force were reported harassing 40,000 Russians in retreat around Karkkajarvi. The Finnish communique reported the capture of "a few enemy positions" northeast of Lake Ladoga. Unofficial Finnish sources estimated the Russians had lost 204 planes and 434 tanks and armored cars during the seven weeks of the war.)

The Soviet soldier, meanwhile, has been ordered into intense training for warfare on the snows, War Commissar Klementi E. Voroshilov said in the newspaper On Guard.

"Trainees must not only learn how to fire under complicated conditions but also be able to solve independently any important problem in battle," he wrote.

Explosion Hurls Two Workers Into Furnace

Newport, Ky.—(AP)—Two workers were burned to death early today when an explosion hurled them into a furnace pit in the Andrews Steel company plant.

The dead were Orville Tungate, 28, and Jesse Phillips, 37, Negro.

Coroner Martin J. Sauter said the men were attempting to loosen some slag with picks and opened a pocket of water. Three rapid explosions followed.

Week's Weather

Chicago—(AP)—Weather outlook for Jan. 22 to 27:

Great Lakes—Considerable cloudiness first of week with light snows; eastern portion not much precipitation likely thereafter; cold mid-week, but not much subzero weather likely.

Upper Mississippi valley and northern great plains—Near normal to considerably below normal temperatures within first half of week, probably followed by moderation, especially over southern areas; not much precipitation likely.

State Funeral Rites Monday at Capital For Senator Borah

DIES AT NEENAH

Neenah—C. A. Babcock, 71, 413 E. Wisconsin avenue, prominent Neenah industrialist, died at his home at about 7 o'clock Friday evening. He had suffered a heart attack Thursday afternoon.

Committee Cuts 12 Million From Budget Estimates

Senate Funds Group Approves Emergency Defense Measure

Washington—(AP)—The senate appropriations committee, taking up the economy drive where the house left off, slashed another $12,788,664 today off of President Roosevelt's budget estimates by approving a $251,822,588 emergency defense appropriations bill.

The committee sent the bill to the senate where it will be considered next week, shorn of $7,875,000 in navy, $4,700,000 in army, and $213,664 in coast guard funds which previously had been approved by the house.

The house-approved total of the measure was $264,611,252 compared with a total of $271,999,523 recommended by the president. Accumulated cuts in the bill to date, therefore, approximate $20,000,000.

The measure carries funds for increases in personnel and equipment made necessary by organization of the neutrality patrol and other expanded naval and military activities as a result of the war in Europe.

Girl Who Hit Baby Is Committed to Hospital

Marquette—(AP)—Edith Dauterman, 17-year-old Wausaukee girl, was committed to the Northern State hospital at Winnebago by County Judge William Haase yesterday after examining physicians declared she was insane.

Miss Dauterman, a student at Marquette high school, was arrested after a hammer attack last Oct. 22 on Robert Lindsay, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lindsay of Marquette. The boy was not seriously hurt.

Physicians said the girl, who had been employed as a maid at the Lindsay home, committed the act in response to hallucinations. She has been under observation at the Winnebago hospital since Oct. 30.

Elderly Man Burned to Death at Home of Son

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—(AP)—August Klatt, 63, was burned fatally yesterday in a bedroom fire at the home of a son, Charles. Firemen found him unconscious on the floor of the adjacent dining room. The fire was believed to have started from a kerosene heater near Klatt's bed. Damage to the home was $500.

Britain's Help to Finland Won't Stay 'Idle Promise,' Halifax Says in Radio Talk

Leeds, England—(AP)—(Via Radio)—Lord Halifax, British secretary for foreign affairs, assured an international radio audience today that England's promise to help Finland "will not remain an idle promise, a mere academic formality."

Speaking from the Leeds town hall, Lord Halifax said he had no doubt that the "prayers of the world" were going up for the Finns in their war with Russia.

(His speech was broadcast in the United States over the NBC and Mutual networks.)

Discussing the conflict between the allies and Germany, the British foreign secretary indicated a belief that Adolf Hitler would have become the dictator of all Europe if England had not continued its rearmament program even after the Munich settlement.

As he sees it, Halifax said, Germany's only chance of winning the war was by doing it at once.

112 Deaths Laid To Frigid Wave During Last Week

New York—(AP)—The winter's sharpest cold wave, blamed for at least 112 deaths in the last week, settled frigidly over the southeastern part of the country today.

Freezing temperatures extended into central Florida last night, but Greenville, Maine, where it was 20 degrees below zero, reported the lowest temperature in the United States.

The coldest weather of the winter iced Connecticut, with an unofficial 10 below recorded at Satan's Kingdom, while the mercury sank to nine below at High Point, N. J., for another seasonal low. New York city had nine above, the lowest of the season.

Another foot of snow fell at Watertown, N. Y., making three in 48 hours, but the storm which tied up western New York state yesterday had abated and temperatures were rising.

Readings as low as 12 below were reported in Pennsylvania, and the principal rivers were choked with ice, halting navigation.

In frozen Maryland the oyster boats were unable to leave their harbors because of ice. The coast guard cutter, McLane, put out in search of the small steamer, Island Belle, which was sent to Smith's Island with milk for babies, but failed to arrive.

The middle west was warming up. Temperatures generally had climbed.

U. S. Closes Case Against Browder

Witness Testifies Communist Leader Used False Names

New York—(AP)—The government closed its brief case against Earl Browder on passport fraud charges yesterday and the trial was adjourned until Monday after a witness testified the Communist leader had on three occasions used names not his own on United States passports.

The witness, Max Bedacht, long a Communist, also testified he had seen Browder in Moscow during periods in which the government claims he was using falsified passports which concealed his identity but gave him the protection of the American government.

Bedacht said photographs on applications for the passports looked "like Browder." Walter Blackburn and FBI technician, said the handwriting on each was Browder's.

The government charges that Browder used other persons' names on passports in 1921, 1927 and in 1931, one of whose was Nicholas Dozenberg, who pleaded guilty to passport fraud charges and turned state's evidence.

LaGuardia Trying to Force End of Dispute

New York—(AP)—Mayor LaGuardia "put the heat" on deadlocked coal strike negotiators in more ways than one yesterday—but one of the ways was in reverse.

Pressing for settlement of the controversy that has tied up deliveries four days, he not only urged an agreement, but had the radiorators turned off in the city hall conference room.

Leaving the meeting after calling another for today, he remarked to bystanders:

"It was rather chilly in there, wasn't it?"

Three Die When Fire Destroys Farm Home

Pontiac, Mich.—(AP)—Three persons burned to death and three others suffered injuries in a fire which destroyed a small rural home in Waterford township shortly before 3 a. m. today.

Lewis Stogner, 33, his wife, Alice, 24, and their 14-months old son, Philip, lost their lives. Another son, Charles, 3 years old, and Mrs. Dorothy Garcia, 21, and her son, Earl, 3, suffered burns that required hospital treatment.

Special Elections Scheduled for Ohio

Columbus, Ohio—(AP)—John W. Bricker today set Feb. 27 for special primaries and Feb. 28 for special elections to fill two vacancies in Ohio's congressional delegation.

The seats were vacated by the deaths of Chester C. Bolton in the 2nd district last fall and William A. Ashbrook in the 17th district on New Year's day. Bolton was a Republican and Ashbrook a Democrat.

Roosevelt and Other Leaders Mourn Nation's Loss

BURIAL IN BOISE

Diplomatic Corps and U. S. Officers to Attend Services

Washington—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah—the man who rode alone—died last night.

The 74-year-old Idaho statesman, known in the senate as an isolationist in personal as well as international affairs, slipped away in sleep at 7:45 p. m. (central standard time).

Nearly was his wife, Mary. She had kept a constant vigil over her husband since last Tuesday. It was then that the Idahoan fell in his apartment bathroom and a cerebral hemorrhage blotted out his consciousness.

Borah, dean of the senate, was able to speak only rarely, after that. When he did it was to call his wife. Leader of historic battles against American participation in the League of Nations and the World

Brief Biography

Washington—(AP)—The official biography authorized by Senator Borah runs just seven lines in the Congressional Directory, as compared with the 40 lines or more of some other members.

The Borah biography "William Edgar Borah, Republican, of Boise, was born June 29, 1863, in Wayne county, Ill.; was educated in the common schools of Wayne county, at the Southern Illinois Academy, Effingham, Ill., and at the Kansas State university, Lawrence; was admitted to practice law Sept. 1890 at Lyons, Kans., and devoted his entire time exclusively to the practice of law until elected to the United States senate Jan. 15, 1907; reelected Jan. 14, 1913, Nov. 5, 1918, Nov. 4, 1924, Nov. 4, 1930 and Nov. 3, 1936."

court, Borah, "the great oppositionist," was named by high officialdom and many a common man.

President Roosevelt, whose foreign policies often brought Borah's ringing denunciation in the senate, declared that "we shall miss him and mourn him and long remember the superb courage which was his."

Arrange for Funeral

Borah's colleagues sadly spoke their words of praise, and there was none who did not refer to him as a friend.

President Roosevelt and members of the cabinet, supreme court and diplomatic corps will attend a state funeral arranged for Monday by senate leaders.

The White House announced the president's intention to be present shortly after plans for the state funeral were definitely decided upon.

The funeral services will be held at 12:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m., C. S. T.) and will be directed by the Rev. Ze Barney T. Phillips, senate chaplain. Borah's body will be taken back to his home state of Idaho for burial at Boise city. Senator D. Worth Clark, Idaho's junior senator, said that the people of that state had asked Mrs. Borah to consent to another state funeral at Boise City on Friday. She had the request under consideration.

Eight senators, it was understood, will be chosen to escort the bier west, leaving here at 5 o'clock p. m. (4 p. m. C. S. T.) Monday. Arrangements for the state funeral here were completed today at a conference of Senators Clark, Barkley (D-Ky.) and McNary (R-Ore.) with Mrs. Borah.

Even as these plans were formulated there was speculation as to Borah's successor. There was talk in Boise that Governor Bottolfsen, a Republican, might resign preparing the way for his own appointment to the vacancy by Lieutenant-Governor Donald Whitehead. Bottolfsen.

Sen. Taft Attacks Non-Partisanship Plea of Roosevelt

Ohio Presidential Aspirant Talks at Milwaukee Republican Rally

Milwaukee—(P)—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who seeks the Republican presidential nomination, believes there should be no soft peddling in discussion of administrative policies, particularly those concerning foreign affairs, during the 1940 election campaign.

Taft addressed about 1,000 at a rally in the auditorium last night. He was the first of the presidential aspirants to visit Wisconsin.

Governor Heil, who preceded him as a speaker, invited all the candidates to come to the state "so we can get a look at them." The governor said he is open-minded on the Republican presidential race.

The son of the late President William Howard Taft maintained that he hoped the campaign would develop no issues involving foreign policy, but indicated that he feared such might be the case.

He questioned the sincerity of President Roosevelt's recent appeal for non-partisanship, and said:

"The president implies that because war exists in Europe, any criticism of the executive is partisan, and tries to tag every opponent as partisan, even if his only crime consists in declining to attend a $100 a plate dinner and listen to a Democratic Jackson day speech.

"It is certainly not partisan to differ with the president's policies on the grounds of principle or to criticize ineffective administration, even if that administration relates to foreign affairs. The very essence of democracy is the right to discuss political questions freely and criticize in proper terms the powers that be."

"It hardly lies in the mouth of any new dealer to discuss the subject of partisanship. There has never been such a partisan administration as the present one. . . . Could there be anything more partisan than the treatment of the Supreme court of the United States?"

He sees foreign policy as the issue in any European quarrels. Taft asserted, and if the Democratic presidential nominee sympathizes with such action, "then foreign policy will be an issue in the 1940 election."

He declared that Republican leaders could well accept the challenge to non-partisanship. "The policies of our party are policies based on the very principles on which this nation has been built: Neutrality in European affairs, limited government expenditures and the end of government deficits, the encouragement and growth of private enterprise, which has increased employment in the past and can alone restore employment and prosperity in the future."

Taft also asserted that he does not feel that the president has "wholeheartedly accepted" the declared view of people of this country that we must stay out of war except in defense of our land. He said involvement of this nation in war would be more likely to destroy American democracy than German dictatorship, and attacked measures "pending in congress" which would give the government power over business, property, prices, wages and employment.

More could be done for democracy, he maintained, by illustrating that it is workable and by maintaining neutrality.

WONT CALL SPECIAL SESSION

Milwaukee—(P)—Governor Heil declared last night he would not call a special session of the legislature to raise taxes.

"I am going to run the state on the money we've got," he declared at the auditorium last night. He preceded Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio as a speaker at a Republican rally.

Heil said he knew he had "failed in giving state jobs to all those who wanted them," but that there would be no spoils system in Madison.

"I am pledged to economy. You know this legislature left me with appropriations and expenditures that they created and were some $20,000,000 short in financing them. Then people say, 'Julius, you know how to wave the magic wand so we can get by without a special session.'"

Heil declared he was open-minded on the presidential race.

City Home Expenses For Year are $3,377

City home expenses during 1939 amounted to $3,377.58, an increase of $780.47 over 1938, according to a report of F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director.

The cost, excluding a county refund of $1,198.86 and other refunds amounting to $80, was $4,654.44, a decrease of $435.58 from the preceding year.

Administration costs for the year amounted to $2,422.45, groceries $825.54, meats $245.96, clothing $220.80, fuel $228.15, drugs $13.34, hospitalization $163.78, dentists $1, burials $65, other medical expense $37.55, household supplies $89, miscellaneous $83.32, dairy and scratch feeds $235.32 and repairs and maintenance $237.23.

Accept $20,000 Gift For Construction of U. W. Practice House

Madison—(P)—The University of Wisconsin board of regents yesterday accepted a gift of $20,000 from the Wisconsin Utilities association for construction of a home economics practice house.

Simultaneously the board accepted a resolution clarifying its position on endowments and other donations.

The association's gift will be supplemented by others for furnishings and equipment, including modern types of gas and electrical appliances.

The resolution declared the university would "gladly accept" memorials for beautification or practical service, current or future instruction and research endowments, scholarships, fellowships, student loans and other gifts, with the understanding "that since the regents are in responsible charge of the university, they must be the final authority in the determination of the use of its physical properties and whether the freedom of the university is curtailed in any way by the terms of any gift. Manifestly the work of the university must be furthered and never hampered by the terms of an endowment."

Approximately $123,000 in gifts for research and teaching was accepted by the board yesterday.

The Wisconsin Alumni Research foundation donated $101,000 for about 100 research projects, and E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Co. of Delaware, $2,750 for chemistry research. Other sources presented pictures, pictures, books, and laboratory apparatus.

Dewey Pleads for 'Release of Force' Of U. S. Industry

Says It Would Make Nation Secure Abroad And at Home

New York—(P)—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, a candidate for the Republican nomination for president, said today that "only by the release of that pent-up force of American private industry can we make ourselves really secure both from dangers abroad and distress at home."

Dewey asserted in a speech prepared for a luncheon meeting of the Women's National Republican clubs that he believed the leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties were determined that the United States should not enter the European war.

"Sharply distinguishing between economic policies and diplomatic relations," he said, "I think it can be said that the American people are united in the broad objectives of their foreign policy."

He described the recognition of Soviet Russia as a "conspicuous and most unfortunate departure" from foreign policies formulated by George Washington and otherwise "laid down during 12 years of Republican administrations."

"As it was said in Moscow at the time," he observed, "the ugly duckling of European politics was thus transformed into a beautiful swan."

Dewey suggested the United States study the porcupine as "our immediate guide."

He goes along, traveling a straight path and minding his own business," said Dewey. "He never picks a fight. But nobody ever has any doubt that he can take care of himself if somebody else starts one."

Any successful foreign policy, Dewey said, must be broadly founded on a successful domestic policy. "No government and no nation is stronger than the total strength of its economy and its individual citizens," he said.

More Talesmen are Summoned for Trial

Green Bay—(P)—Forty additional talesmen have been summoned to report in circuit court Tuesday morning for the trial of Joseph Devroy, charged with the first degree murder of his mother-in-law.

With the regular panel, the additional summonses issued yesterday make 76 persons available from which to select 13 jurors to try the case.

Mrs. Lena Devroy and her mother, Mrs. Emily Kaiser, were shot to death last July 25 a few hours after Devroy was served with a summons in his wife's divorce case.

Devroy, who has pleaded innocent by reason of temporary insanity, also is charged in a separate action with murdering his wife.

Heat Is Issue Though Weather Is Freezing

Dallas—(P)—Although the mercury was near the zero-mark, the issue in federal court was heat—135 degrees in the shade, had there been any shade.

C. Ross Spencer, plaintiff, told the court he worked in 135-degree weather in the Arabian desert.

He asked the jury to award him $3,228.80. He charged the defendants, Geophysical Service, failed to keep an agreement to give him three months vacation during the hot weather while he was head driller.

State Funeral Is Planned at Capital For Senator Borah

sen, praising Borah, said he would have no comment on a successor until after the funeral.

There also was discussion in political circles of the possibility that Mrs. Borah might be named to fill her husband's seat until this year's November election.

Other Possibilities Several others also were mentioned, including Donald A. Callahan, Republican defeated by Senator D. Worth Clark, Democrat, in 1938; State Senator Thomas Heath and Ezra Whitla, Republican national committeeman.

Borah's death had been a question of time since his fall. Then, Mrs. Borah wondered why he was late for breakfast, finally called him in vain and discovered his unconscious form.

His head was crushed, and for some time physicians feared his back was broken. Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), who cried unashamedly, said: "He never had a chance."

Borah never regained sufficient consciousness to explain what had happened. Medical authorities said it was impossible to ascertain whether he suffered a stroke and fell or whether the brain hemorrhage resulted from the fall.

The Idaho veteran, whose senate speeches always drew crowded galleries and a large attendance of his colleagues, died peacefully and without pain. Miss Cora Rubin, his secretary for more than thirty years, said death came over Borah like a deep slumber.

Known As Isolationist Borah was known among his colleagues as an isolationist. In questions of foreign policy, but he constantly reiterated that his views sprang from a basic desire to keep this country out of war.

The gray-haired senator, called for years "The Lion of Idaho," fought many a lost cause but was the winner of some.

He was a leader in the recent fight against Mr. Roosevelt's recently enacted neutrality program, and his address against it commanded more attention from his colleagues and galleries than any other speech. Senators on both sides of the aisle turned their chairs to hear him, and spectators upstairs broke senate rules to applaud when he finished.

On the victorious side, he was one of the leaders in the fight against this country's entry into the league and the world court.

His lone-wolf attitude showed up in many ways. While other senators before for days to line up support before introducing a bill, he never consulted his colleagues before proposing a measure. Few of his major legislative suggestions ever were enacted.

Borah married Mary McConnell, a daughter of a former Idaho governor, when he was 30.

Wife At Side Mrs. Borah was constantly at her husband's side, and so closely shared his views that she became known as "Little Borah." Close friends said the Idahoan always talked over major decisions with his wife.

Mrs. Borah was reported to have held up bravely during her husband's losing fight for life. She cried when death came, but was able to converse with close friends who came to express their sorrow.

The Idaho senator had no children. Besides his wife, he was survived by a sister, Mrs. Mattie Rindard of Fairfield, Ill., and a nephew, Wayne G. Borah, a federal judge in New Orleans.

Borah frequently was mentioned for president, and always commanded substantial popular support. He announced as a presidential candidate in 1936 but walked out of the Republican convention at Cleveland because he was displeased that a strong anti-monopoly plank had not been written into the platform.

Leaders Mourn President Roosevelt expressed the sentiment of leaders of varied political faiths when he said that Borah's death "leaves a void in American life."

Other expressions of mourning: Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader: "He is one of the men whose death will make an impression around the world."

Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader: "No one can ever fill his place."

Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the Republican national committee: "Senator Borah did not always agree with others in the Republican party but none ever doubted his sincerity or questioned the lofty motives which inspired him."

Secretary Hull: "His long record of truly great service to the people of the nation will live in history."

Supreme Court Justice Murphy: "Undoubtedly history will rank him with the great leaders of American democracy."

Clung To Principles Life-long devotion to a few cherished principles and implacable opposition to others he disapproved characterized the career of Borah, whose more than 30 years in the United States senate covered two of the most crucial periods of American history.

Throughout his life in Washington he crusaded against great combinations of wealth and industrial control, and championed the cause of states rights while in international affairs he tenaciously pursued a rigid policy of no foreign entanglements. The defeat of efforts to put the United States into the League of Nations and the world court was due in no small part to his opposition.

Politically, the "Lion of Idaho" held an underlying belief in the theory of government by party and though his own ideals sometimes ran contrary to the tenets of organized Republicanism he never renounced his party affiliation, preferring instead to try to swing the party around to what he considered his more liberal views.

Often In Spotlight When Borah first left mountainous Idaho to take a senate seat in 1907, a historic chapter in American statesmanship began.

Equipped with courage, blunt independence and limitless vitality, he was to become an American institution and an international figure. A gift for oratory and a penetrating mind helped the young senator capture a place in the spotlight that he did not relinquish during his lifetime.

He saw administrations come and go. Shifting political winds in his home state left him untouched. At the end of his career, extending through the World war years and the economic upheaval of the early 1930's, he was the oldest member of the senate in point of service, the chamber's acknowledged authority on constitutional law and probably its most feared adversary in debate.

Some Republican colleagues looked askance at many of the forthright Borah's more liberal views.

In 1936 he demanded "liberalization" of the G. O. P., denounced the "old guard" leadership and asked for the presidential nomination. The convention chose Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, and Borah announced "I have no intention of bolting the ticket," and added, "I am supporting the platform and I have been supporting the platform from the beginning."

Although he broke with President Hoover before the 1932 campaign, Borah did not take the stump for either presidential candidate in that race.

In congress, the long-named Idahoan left the imprint of his power on a succession of important laws that carried out his social and economic views. Many another legislative effort died aborning because of Borah's relentless opposition.

Foreign Policy Influence As chairman of the senate foreign relations committee he was a power to be reckoned with on matters of international policy during the pre-Roosevelt years.

He teamed with Senator Hiram Johnson (R-Calif.) to lead the fight against American participation in the League of Nations and the world court, delivering during that debate what many students called one of the greatest speeches in the history of the senate.

As a member of the senate judiciary committee he helped in 1937 to defeat the president's plan for reorganizing the supreme court.

Although during the Roosevelt administrations Borah's minority affiliation stripped him of much influence, he always commanded an attentive audience and a well-filled chamber when he took the senate floor.

Chief Prim Plans For Police School

Training Sessions Starting Next Month Part of State-Wide Program

Police Chief George T. Prim is making arrangements for the police training program which will be started next month by the Wisconsin Police Chiefs association and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The training sessions probably will be held in the Appleton Vocational school.

Chief Prim will issue invitations to all policemen in the Appleton area and about 80 are expected to take the course which will continue until spring.

The sessions here will be part of the state-wide police training program which will be carried out in 17 zone centers. Details of the studies will not be disclosed, and strict regulation of attendance will be required in order to protect the confidential character of law enforcement techniques.

HEARING ON WILL Judge Fred V. Heinemann will conduct a hearing on the will of Herman Satow at a special term of county court Tuesday, Jan. 30.

14 Counties Report Traffic Fatalities During Last Month

Fourteen of Wisconsin's 71 counties have reported their first traffic deaths for 1940, according to George W. Rickman, commissioner of the state motor vehicle department. They are Outagamie, Brown, Crawford, Clark, Dane, Dodge, Green, LaCrosse, Milwaukee, Richland, Sheboygan, Vilas, Waukesha and Winnebago.

Motorists and pedestrians suffered a loss of 17 lives in the first 15 days of January, compared with 30 in the same period of last year.

Conservation Club Picks Committees; Outlines Program

Defeated by narrow margin in first race for senate. Elected to first of six senate terms. Indicted—and quickly acquitted—on charge that he was counsel for a lumber company at the time it obtained fraudulent title to federal timber land.

1910-1920 Refused to bolt Republican party to support Theodore Roosevelt's "Bull Moose" campaign. Began relentless fight against American entrance into the League of Nations and the world court. Campaigned for release of political prisoners after the World war. Advocated Hiram W. Johnson, Republican independent of California, for president.

1920-1930 Declined Republican leadership in the senate during Harding administration. Turned down chance to run for vice president with Calvin Coolidge. Took lead among Republicans in advising dismissal of Harry M. Pheasant production, Wilbur Steenis, Arnold Lopus, Gordon Ratman, Hanley, J. C. Branchford, Krause, Wonders, Vandenberg, Price, Fred Rehfeldt, and August Rehmer; Rabbits, Rehfeldt, Vernon Fuerst, Branchford, Frank Pogratt, William Olson, Jerry Lillge, Wonders, Vandenberg, Price, James Schwerbel, Oliver Krull and Norbert Schroeder. Directors of the club are Krause, Van Ryzin, Rehfeldt, Wonders, Lopus and Vandenberg. Others members at the meeting were Price, vice president; Leonard Zehren, treasurer; and Koch.

Slate of Delegates Would be Pledged to New Deal Principles Sheboygan—(P)—C. E. Broughton, Sheboygan publisher and Democratic National committeeman, asserted today that a complete list of convention delegates pledged to support Roosevelt principles would be offered in the Wisconsin April primary.

Broughton, who expressed hope President Roosevelt would be "our standard bearer" in the 1940 campaign, said that an untruncated delegation would be a repudiation of the New Deal.

"Right now James A. Farley, chairman of the National Democratic committee, and the president are having numerous conferences, all in the interest of the coming campaign, and their wishes should be ours," he added.

U. W. Alumni Will Hear Radio Talks

Dykstra, Davies, Duffy, Greene to be Founders Day Speakers

The University of Wisconsin Founders day broadcast from Madison the night of Feb. 7 will be one of the features of the banquet of Wisconsin alumni chapters from Appleton, Neenah-Menasha, and Oshkosh which will be held at Valley Inn in Neenah Wednesday night, Feb. 7.

A Certain Mr. Scalse, Labor Leader, Goes on the Carpet

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Mr. William Green, American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Green:

A few days ago I wrote that the roster of officials of unions in the American Federation of Labor contained the nucleus for a good, major league rogues' gallery. In case you thought I was mistaken I am going to tell you today that the head of one of your big international unions was sentenced to Atlanta penitentiary for four years and six months for white slavery. This is not Willie Bioff, the Chicago racketeer and vice monger who was and remains boss of the movie and theatrical crafts. Willie is not a union president but just the personal, appointed representative of George Browne, who is, nominally at least, the president of the union. The man I mean is George Scalse, a Brooklyn racketeer who has become president of the Building Service Employees International union. Scalse is a criminal of the vilest type that it is possible to imagine and a member of an old mob in Brooklyn. He used to be a bodyguard for Frankie Vale, alias Yale, the Capone mobster who was killed, nevertheless, and since the repeal of prohibition he and other hoodlums of the same type in Brooklyn and New York have moved into the labor racket.

This building service employees union is no cheap little local, Mr. Green, but one of your big international unions, and Scalse has been moving out the old officials of little subsidiary unions which have existed for years and moving in himself. He is a big shot in Chicago and San Francisco, but I suppose you don't need to be told how big he is. You know all that, but I can't see how you can fail to know what he is or, if you do know what he is, why you haven't had him thrown out of the American Federation of Labor. Do you think it is doing the American Federation of Labor any good to permit such a man to be president of one of your big international unions or doing the rank and file working stiffs any good to subject them to the rule of a vicious mobster?

Scalse Convicted Of Forcing Girl Into Prostitution In 1913

Have it your own way, Mr. Green. If you lose your own job for stringing along with such people that is your affair. This Scalse, Mr. Green, was convicted in the federal court in Brooklyn in September, 1913, on four out of eight counts. He and another hoodlum named Joe Alfano, alias Fox, transported a girl from Brooklyn to Boston, N. J., to work her as a prostitute for their profit. The reason why they received such heavy sentences—Alfano got four years—was that the crime was unusually vicious. And Judge Veeder, in his charge to the jury, spoke of the details of the case as "nauseating" and told the jury that they were to disregard evidence that the girl was beaten, seduced and persuaded to live with your distinguished colleague in the labor movement on false promises of marriage. Scalse wasn't on trial for those amiable little acts of rudeness.

That makes two I have given you, Mr. Green.

Do you want some more? Okay, Mr. Green. I will give you background on plenty of your American Federation of Labor colleagues. It must be interesting work—your job as president of the American Federation of Labor. You meet such nice people. Yours very truly, Westbrook Pegler.

Arthur Kuehl Installed as Head of Odd Fellows Lodge

Kaukauna—Arthur Kuehl was inducted as noble grand and Frank Juneau as vice grand, when Odd Fellows installed officers Thursday evening. Others who took office were Herman Dolven, recording secretary; Earl Belonges, financial secretary; Charles Winge, treasurer; Ed Mantel, Alex. Wolf, John Hohnner, trustees; Nic Schomisch, warden; Arthur Hipp, conductor; Walter Kuehl, chaplain; William Taggart and Alex. Wolf, guards; Victor Thompson and William Lambie, supporters of noble grand; Fred Densch and Fred Grimmer, supporters of vice grand. A letter was read from J. E. Whisner, St. Pedro, Calif., the oldest living charter member of the local lodge, who is in good health at 98. Arrangements were made for a card party Feb. 1, and lunch served.

Officers of Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed church will be elected at a meeting at 11 o'clock Sunday morning at the church.

The Appleton post degree team will be in charge of mustering 15 candidates into the local Veterans of Foreign Wars group here Tuesday evening. Armin Scheurle, Appleton, senior department commander, and Jack Mosco, Green Bay district commander, will speak. Lunch and refreshments will be served.

Royal Arch Masons will meet at 6:30 Monday evening at Masonic temple, with a dinner preceding the business meeting. Degree work will be taken up.

Outagamie county council of American Legion will meet at Kaukauna Thursday evening, with a 6:30 dinner at Legion hall preceding the business meeting. Posts from Appleton, New London, Hortonville, Seymour, Black Creek, Kimberly, Little Chute and Kaukauna will be represented. Those wishing to help with the dinner are to contact Commander George F. ## Sasse Scores 8 Points for Clintonville in Preliminary Tilt Kaukauna—Kaukauna reserves won out over Clintonville Bees here last night, 23 to 16. Byron Befort and Lee Cooper topped the Kaw attack with two baskets apiece, while Sasse led the visitors with 8 points. The score was tied at 5 to 5 at the quarter, with the Kaws taking a 10 to 8 lead at half time and stretching their margin to 19 to 10 as the final period opened.

Second team contests have come to have great importance for the varsity game. In all 11 games this year, every time the Bees won the first team came through, and when the Bees lost the varsity also came out on the short end.

CYO to Present Comedy at Parish Hall on March 10

Miss Betty Morse Will Direct Play; Rehearsals Start Feb. 8

New London—Production of a play, a 3-act comedy entitled "The Crazy Smith Family," was decided upon by the Catholic Youth Organization of the Most Precious Blood church at a meeting Thursday night. The play will be presented March 10 at the parish hall.

Part of the cast of 12 characters has been chosen and rehearsals will begin with a full cast on Feb. 8. Miss Betty Morse will direct the play with the Rev. Richard Keller, C. Y. O. director, in charge of production. The play will provide activity for the group during the Lenten season.

A dancing party for members was planned on Shrove Tuesday evening, Feb. 6, the last day before Lent begins.

Papers on study topics were given by four members at Thursday's meeting. Those speaking were Charles Clark on "The Encyclopedia of the World," Lester Schimke, "God, the True Source of Civilization," Rosaline Klat, "World Losing Interest in Christ," Anton Herzer, "The Church and Life Worth Living." Those assigned papers for the February meeting were Dorothy Allen, Eunice Freiburger, Weldon Harris and Donald Popke.

Records Tumble In Plywood Loop

Felsner Cracks 234, 583; Reds Set New Team Mark of 2,509

New London—All second half marks fell in the Plywood bowling league at Prah's last night. J. I. Felsner pounded the maples for both individual marks with a 234 line and 583 total. His big game gave Hank's Dodgers high team game of 861 but the squad lost two games to Ed's Reds as the latter bombarded the tennpins for a new team mark of 2,509 with games of 850, 808 and 851.

The wins maintained the Reds hold on first place with a 7-2 standing while the Dodgers tied for third at 3-6. Pacing the leaders were Erv Buelow with 535 and C. Krohn with 534. Harold Roepeke with a 526 count led Urban's Cubs in two victories over Kroll's Bees to retain second place.

Men's Club League
Krueger's Five broke away from a tie to take the lead when they downed Marzinkis two games and Lippolds were upset three by Sawalls. The latter moved into second place. Orville Handschke of Marzinkis hit top series of 525 while Harold Steingraber led the leaders with 523. Boeses count won their first two games from Mesikes to tie for last place.

Lawrence Backs Proposed Bureau Study of Budget

Says House Making Mistake in Declining to Join Senate in Plan

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—No better demonstration could be given of the mistake in judgment made by the house of representatives in declining to join the senate in a scientific study of the budget as proposed by Senator Harrison of Mississippi than what has happened these last few days.

Instead of surveying the budget as a whole in committee so that needful items could be explained and justified and wasteful ones eliminated, the house has been lopping off appropriations here and there without regard to their merit or usefulness.

Take, for instance, the $26,000 a year which was wanted by the newly established council of personnel administration. It is one of the worthiest of the new agencies and is not to be classed at all with the bureaucratic institutions which eat up public funds. It happens to be a bureau which has long been needed in the government to help coordinate personnel and prevent conflicts between departments in the selection or promotion of employees.

The head of the council is a former member of the house, Fred Davenport of New York. A Republican who has been devoting his recent years without compensation to the cause of better government and who agreed to serve as the head of the newly established council at the urging of Mr. Roosevelt.

Saving Money
Every big corporation has a personnel director, and it is a well known fact that systems of personnel administration in private business have been the means of improving efficiency and saving money. The federal government has never tackled the coordination of personnel in the interesting and constructive way which was proposed under the council of personnel administration. A few minutes of study of the purpose of this agency would have convinced members of congress that it had nothing to do with partisanship or politics or job-getting and was one of the first administrative reforms of its kind instituted by the government itself.

The president was quick to perceive the damage which might result from an elimination of the council of personnel administration and promptly stressed the purpose of the council as aiming at a uniform employment policy and the application of the merit system. He then discussed with the press other agencies which he felt should not have been eliminated.

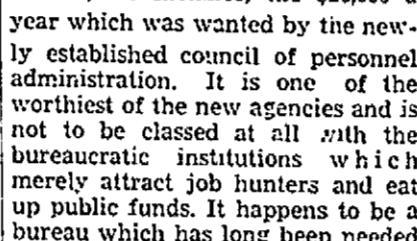

Mr. Roosevelt will have the advantage as he comments on worthy agencies and blames congress for yielding an axe instead of a surgeon's knife in cutting expenditures. But in view of the political nature of the combat over expenses and the nation-wide demand for economy, the administration leaders who prevented the proposal of Senator Harrison from being adopted really are responsible for what is happening. The house cuts expenses in hit-or-miss fashion whenever there is no opportunity for a general survey to be made in which all factions can be represented.

European Systems
European parliamentary systems have always had a much better way of handling a budget. The party in power as well as the opposition party are required by custom to offer rival budgets. This means that inside each group there must be a scientific study of all items, and concessions must be made here and there within the party leadership so as to bring out a budget that will stand or fall with the parliament itself.

Under the American system, there is no responsibility whatsoever. The executive recommends a budget without previous study in detail by the leaders of his own party. Then, when a party leader like Senator Harrison proposes to find out what items are justified and what ones should be eliminated, the administration persuades other members of the leadership in congress to oppose the move. The result is that logrolling for appropriations and political conflicts ensues. It would not be surprising if the Republicans, plus about 60 to 75 Democrats, would succeed in handing to the senate a budget which is distasteful to the administration, and then Senator Harrison may insist on a comprehensive study of the budget after all. It's about the only way that a big $2,400,000,000 budget can be handled without permitting unwise economies to be made or wasteful expenditures to be included. And even if appropriations are held up by reason of the senate's desire to examine them carefully, the advantage of a well-rounded budget will more than outweigh the disadvantage of delay.

Burmester and Mrs. L. J. Wickesberg won the prizes Tuesday evening when Mrs. N. A. Schauger entertained the Neighborhood Five Hundred club.

Mrs. I. A. Grunwaldt spent this week with her sister in Chicago.

Ohio Delegation Prepares to Back Roosevelt at Convention

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Cleveland—Premature publicity has upset, temporarily at least, one of the nearest administration maneuvers undertaken in connection with the 1940 Democratic nomination.

The Ohio delegation of 52 convention votes—not only a sizeable group but one of strategic importance—was almost in the bag when the Democratic state chairman, Arthur L. Limbach, let the news leak out, unable to hold his big secret any longer.

Part of the damage was caused by the distorted emphasis on the third-term aspect of the arrangement. The delegates were to agree to vote for President Roosevelt if his name was before the convention. Mr. Limbach explained—although the explanation was ignored—that he was informed by Washington administration sources that Mr. Roosevelt would not accept renomination and wanted only to be able to deliver Ohio's delegation to the successor of his office.

The proposition is to allow on the Ohio delegation only persons who will pledge themselves to stand by the Roosevelt administration in all convention test votes. Furthermore, delegates are to pledge themselves to be bound by the unit rule—by which the entire delegation votes as a unit with the majority of the delegation.

The understanding here was that this was not a third-term maneuver but a means of building up administration control over the national convention. The plan was well along, and despite the embarrassment caused by premature publicity it is likely to be put into effect.

Acc of Clubs Meets At Marion Dwelling

New Equipment Is Recommended for Snow Operations

City Engineer Outlines Needs of City; Plow Is Purchased

Alfred Wickesberg, city engineer, made several recommendations to improve Appleton's snow removal facilities at a joint meeting of the board of public works and the council's street and bridge committee Friday.

The first step was taken when the joint bodies purchased a Ross snow plow from the Central Traffic and Equipment company, Wisconsin Rapids, for $560, the high bidder. Other proposals were offered by the Bark River Bridge and Culvert company, Bark River, Mich., $510, and the Cunningham-Ortmeyer company, Milwaukee, $470.

Wickesberg said the Ross plow was bought because the committees judged it the best buy and because it is the same as other plows owned by the city making repairs easier. The plow will be mounted on the No. 2 truck and the used plow will be an auxiliary plow for No. 3 truck during breakdowns.

Recommendations Plow

The engineer recommended the purchase of a large motor grader equipped with a V-type plow with a wing for heavy snow removal operations to prevent the recurrence of delayed snow removal because of inadequate equipment.

The grader could be used the year around on street work as well as for snow removal. Such a machine would cost about $5,500, he said.

His second recommendation was for purchase of a three-eighths yard power shovel equipped with a snow bucket to augment the snow loading machine. The shovel could be used to load snow onto trucks in the winter and would save rental fees in the summer when the city usually rents shovels for loading dirt and other materials. A shovel would cost about $6,000.

He also recommended the purchase of a used heavy-duty truck at a cost not to exceed $500. The plow now carried by the light White truck would be transferred to the heavier machine and the White would be released for work more suitable for its weight.

Wickesberg's recommendations will be considered at a meeting of the street and bridge committee early next week.

Bids for the construction of a depressed sewer system in the northwest section of the city were opened and were referred to the engineer for tabulation.

Following are the bids received: Charles A. Green, Appleton, $5,931; R. Wenzel Plumbing company, Appleton, $6,416.25; Charles Wilson, Appleton, $6,671.50; Holtz and Bass, Appleton, $7,382.50; Koopke Construction company, 7,983.45; R. Emundsen, Green Bay, $8,823; Central Construction company, Oshkosh, $8,965; and Edward H. Meyer, Oshkosh, $10,520.70.

The sewers are to be laid in the depressed area at the northwest city limits on Badger avenue from Spring street to Wisconsin avenue, Summer street from Linwood avenue to Badger avenue and on Wisconsin avenue from Linwood to Badger. A tunnel will cross Badger avenue at Summer street where a pumping station will be built to lift sewage from the low area into the Appleton sewerage system.

Pumping Station
 The pumping station will lift the sewage about 15 feet and will cost about $2,250. The tunnel will carry a 10-inch sewer to feed into the present Badger avenue line. The engineer is working on plans for an alarm system to connect to the fire department's system so if the system fails workmen could be dispatched immediately to repair the trouble.

The street and bridge committee recommended curbs and gutters next spring for the following streets: Packard street from Badger avenue to Douglas street; Outagamie street from Packard street to Outagamie court; Outagamie court from Outagamie street to Douglas street; Lorain street from Outagamie court to Douglas street; and Douglas street from Packard street to Badger avenue at a cost not to exceed 50 per cent under a WPA project. The board of public works will assess benefits and damages.

Clark street from the railroad tracks to Wisconsin avenue was dropped from the mandatory list scheduled for snow removal. Property owners on the street protested the charge of 10 cents per foot for the work. Also dropped from the schedule was W. Franklin street from Richmond street to State street.

Disqualify Melham For Public Service

Commission Post

Madison—(P)—Selection of a successor to Calmer Browne, acting secretary of the Public Service Commission, was delayed again yesterday as the commission unanimously disqualified Thomas W. Melham, of Milwaukee.

The commission, which rejected Paul Clark, of Eau Claire, last week, said Melham lacked the "necessary office administrative experience," and called for certification of another applicant in addition to those of Estelle Rowe, commission employee, and Hugo Hering, deputy state treasurer.

Since a list of three is required, and all qualifying applicants have been certified, another examination is necessary, commission chairman Reuben W. Petersen said. Commissioner Wildon F. Whitney voted against further certification.

A. J. Opstedal, director of the bureau of personnel, said he would place the question before the personnel board, probably Monday.

Kox Is Candidate For Reelection to Treasurer's Post

Announces Candidacy for Job He's Held Four Terms

Nomination papers were taken out for Joseph A. Kox, city treasurer, today after Kox announced that he will seek the nomination for reelection to the treasurer's office in the primary election, March 12.

Kox will finish his fourth 2-year term as treasurer in Appleton. He was unopposed two years ago. No other candidate has taken out papers for the office to date.

Papers also are being circulated for Aaron Zerbel, incumbent supervisor in the Eighth ward; Leslie Gebheim, seeking the supervisory post in the Sixth ward; and Walter J. Nissen, a candidate for alderman in the Twelfth ward.

Nomination papers for all city offices must be filed at the city clerk's office by 10 o'clock in the morning Feb. 21. The primary election will be held March 12 and the general election will be April 2.

Aldermen and supervisors from even-numbered wards will have to run for office again this spring while the officers in odd-numbered wards will stay in office for their full 2-year terms. Other offices open are mayor, city clerk, city treasurer, city engineer, city attorney, city assessor and two school board posts.

Belle Height Gets Permit for Utility

Village Will Buy Water From Appleton Distribution System

The public service commission today authorized the town of Grand Chute to build a $58,000 water distribution system to serve the unincorporated village of Belle Heights with water obtained from Appleton.

Permission followed a number of hearings. Madison attended by representatives of the village and of the Appleton water commission. The Appleton utility will furnish water through a master meter at Wisconsin avenue and Bennett street and will charge the town of Grand Chute for the water. A utility will be set up in the town to maintain water mains and make collections of water charged.

Work already has started on the installation of mains in the village. The wholesale water rate to be charged against the town has been approved by the service commission. A consumer rate has not yet been approved.

County Youths to Assist in Staging Livestock Exhibit

Francis Jamison, route 1, Appleton, and Charles Mader, route 2, Appleton, students at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, will help stage the "Little International" annual student livestock show, to be held during Farm and Home week, at Madison Thursday evening, Feb. 1. Both Mader and Jamison are students in the farm short course and will show dairy cows.

Awards will be made on the amount of improvement made in fitting the animal and in the way it is shown. Featured in the show will be a parade of champions, an all-university championship riding event, a pulling exhibition by America's champion draft pulling team, and an exhibition of a 6-horse Suffolk gelding team.

Native of Appleton Dies in California

Colonel William H. Kennedy, 57, LaJolla, Calif., native of Appleton, died Thursday. Retired from the United States army, Colonel Kennedy headed the 106th Field Artillery regiment in the World war and saw service in France. He was born in Appleton and lived here until he entered the army. A widow survives.

The new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Van Rooy, occupied only a week, is shown above. Built of a new type of brick, the home is at 901 E. Fremont street. It has a living room, two bedrooms, kitchen, and bath downstairs; two bedrooms on the second floor. Joseph Hantschel was the contractor. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Finns Glad When Darkness Forbids Soviet Air Attacks

BY WADE WERNER

Helsinki—(P)—What a difference just a few air raids make! Was it really only a few weeks ago that the Finns loved the sunshine and saw romance in the moonlit night?

Now inhabitants of cities and towns curse clear skies and watch the rising moon with foreboding. The northern day is lengthening, and nobody likes it—longer days mean more daylight for Soviet Russian bombers.

At night, Helsinki's blacked-out streets are treacherous with ice, but the blacker the night the safer and better . . . at least, it means one can sleep a few hours without worry.

I finally bought one of those white snow camouflage capes—appropriately sold in masquerade departments of large stores . . . On the same shelf are false whiskers and other gadgets to put life into a party . . .

On mannequins, look hooded . . . voluminous capes, look smart . . . I thought one would give me the appearance of the Prophet Isaiah in a painting I had seen somewhere. Actually, it made me look like the family wash, all bundled up ready for the laundry.

It is amazing what persons will do to occupy themselves underground during an alarm . . . Some merely bite their fingernails nervously, others read books . . . men seem to like conversation . . . women generally prefer to knit socks or sweaters in silence . . . One I watched was wrestling earnestly with a crossword puzzle!

Nervous individuals—usually foreigners—sit stiffly and count what they think are 200 detonations . . . Later they learn 199 of the "explosions" were doors slamming upstairs.

Anyway, six months more of this and our idea of a heavenly mansion will be a cave in the mountains—with iron shutters.

Farmer, 61, Dies Shovelling Snow

Phillip Sasman, Route 2, Black Creek, Stricken This Morning

Phillip Sasman, 61, route 2, Black Creek, for many years clerk of the Hillway school, town of Black Creek and a former town supervisor, died unexpectedly at 9:30 this morning. He suffered a heart attack while shovelling snow.

Born April 13, 1878, in the town of Black Creek, he lived at the same farm his entire life.

Survivors are the widow: four sons, Alvin, Lloyd, Orlo and John, route 2, Black Creek; two daughters, Ruth and Esther, route 2, Black Creek; two sisters, Mrs. Jacob Gregorius, Black Creek; Mrs. Mary Jackson, California; and a brother, George Sasman, Davenport, Wash.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Immanuel Lutheran church, Black Creek. The Rev. J. C. Masch will be in charge. Burial will be in the Sasman cemetery. The body may be viewed at the Burdick Funeral home, Black Creek, Monday.

But Doctors Should Know That the Stork Doesn't Read Papers

Mountainair, N. M.—(P)—Newspaper advertisement, signed by three physicians of this mountain village: "If you are expecting the stork to visit your house this year, and he is to come by way of Mountainair, he will have to bring the cash to pay his bill before delivery."

Births

A daughter was born yesterday to Lieutenant and Mrs. H. J. Watkins at Hamilton Field, Calif. Watkins is the former Miss Elizabeth Shannon of Appleton.

A son was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Otto, route 1, Dale, at St. Elizabeth hospital.

The county highway committee will consider bids on two 8,000-gallon tank cars of gasoline and one 10,000-gallon tank car of fuel oil at 10 o'clock Monday morning in the highway offices at the courthouse. Routine business also will be transacted.

Captain Charles Steidl of the county traffic squad today advised motorists that county snow removal equipment has the right-of-way on highways and roads at all times, irrespective of which side of the road is being used or in what direction the equipment is going.

County trucks and tractors equipped with plows may be identified at night by the blue and amber lights they carry, Captain Steidl said. Motorists should slow down when approaching them, he warned.

Captain Steidl also asked motorists to refrain from passing funeral processions on the highway, because of the accident hazards involved.

Milwaukee—(P)—Miss Elizabeth G. Marshall, who gave much of her time and money to Catholic charities and institutions, died yesterday.

Miss Marshall was a daughter of Samuel Marshall, who came to Milwaukee in 1847 and founded a bank which later became the Marshall and Ilsley. She was born Feb. 1, 1859, at Madison, where the partners also founded a bank.

In 1926 she was decorated by the late Pope Pius XI.

Awards will be made on the amount of improvement made in fitting the animal and in the way it is shown. Featured in the show will be a parade of champions, an all-university championship riding event, a pulling exhibition by America's champion draft pulling team, and an exhibition of a 6-horse Suffolk gelding team.

The grader could be used the year around on street work as well as for snow removal. Such a machine would cost about $5,500, he said.

He also recommended the purchase of a used heavy-duty truck at a cost not to exceed $500. The plow now carried by the light White truck would be transferred to the heavier machine and the White would be released for work more suitable for its weight.

Wickesberg's recommendations will be considered at a meeting of the street and bridge committee early next week.

SENATOR BORAH

America has lost Senator Borah at one of those times when the need for him is keenest.

He belonged to that little coterie of intensely able and intensely honest men who have been conspicuous in public life throughout the generations.

He would not stoop to conquer. He would not equivocate to induce victory. He looked everyone straight in the eye and gave his opinion manfully. No one ever took exception with his sincerity.

He was the product of democracy at its very best. He was selected by a little state whose voters practically all knew him. It mattered not what ticket he ran upon or whether there were a landslide the other way. No one could befuddle the voters of his state concerning his qualifications nor the high desirability of retaining him in conspicuous public employment.

He will be associated on the pages of history with men like Clay, Webster and Calhoun of a century ago, and with Hoar, Morgan and Cullom of half a century ago. So long as the leadership in America can be kept in trusted hands like those of the leader who is now dead the future course will be filled with optimism.

THE LEGISLATURE'S DISCREDIT

The Heil administration, Madison dispatches inform us, now has a good chance to avoid splashing red ink on state ledgers during its term of office, although only a few months ago the state capitol seethed with predictions that state government bankruptcy was imminent.

Heil and his advisors, we find, have worked out a plan by which the state treasury will be solvent or nearly so during the biennium and under which the budget will be not nearly as far out of balance as was previously supposed.

That is a creditable achievement, although the public will probably have a second look at the details before bursting into applause. There is, for example, the fact that a key factor in the Heil plan to extricate the state from a sorry financial muddle is the transfer of $6,000,000 from the highway account book to the state treasury. That, although it is paraded as an "economy" by administration publicists, is hardly that, and is moreover scarcely consistent with the assurances which the governor so blandly gave the electorate before he took office.

Some of the governor's constituents will also recognize very quickly that when the state curtails what is already a modest enough relief appropriation it is economizing at the expense of the local units of government, for there is no evidence whatever that relief costs are lower in Wisconsin this winter, while in many localities they are higher. In addition, WPA funds during the next year will be strictly reduced, according to the news from Washington.

It may also be generally remembered that when Heil chopped $2,500,000 from the deficit the legislature left him by vetoing parts of pension appropriations, he nullified what the legislature intended was to be a reduction of the burden of social security costs on local real estate property taxpayers.

We note further that Heil will probably postpone payment of $1,700,000 to the teachers' retirement fund. Teachers won't appreciate that particular "economy," pointing out justifiably enough that they have a contract with the state which provides for regular contributions to their fund, while the layman can point to the fact that last year the state accumulated an interest obligation of $128,000 because previous governors were as unwilling as Heil to pay to the teachers' pension system what the state has agreed to pay into it. It is another contradiction of the pleasant fiction that because the constitution prohibits it, the state has no debts.

Nor will the general public soon forget, in these days of universal puffing, the fact that Republican administration legislators increased state taxation $3,000,000 a year by assessing a tax of two cents on every package of smokes, and that Governor Heil, who stormed against already high taxes as a candidate, signed that bill into law.

Notwithstanding all the qualifications which spring to mind, however, in considering the Heil plan for budget-balancing, it cannot be denied that the governor has turned the scales in a surprising fashion since last October when his legislative helpmates deserted the capitol in confusion and left the budget chaos in his hands.

Consequently, if there is to be any praise for averting financial crisis in the capitol, that praise must go to Heil and his executive office advisors. The legislature after nine dreary months of generous spending and adamant refusal to raise revenues to match its liberality, turned tail and ran. If Heil has solved the mess it left behind, the glory is Heil's.

WHITHER POINTS THE ARROW?

Thomas F. Woodlock at New York made a stinging comparison between the Nazi philosophy of "realistic jurisprudence" and that which is now developing in this country under the New Deal.

Dr. Hans Frank whom he cites as the "principal exponent of Nazi jurisprudence" argues cleverly that the right thing to do is whatever a nation may profitably do and consequently that the erroneous thing to do is whatever is to the nation's disadvantage. Then Mr. Woodlock continues:

"The school of 'realistic jurisprudence' has of late years made its appearance... to an extent quite unrealized by most people, who like the color of the 'liberal' robes in which it vests itself, and are totally unsuspecting of what these robes conceal. It is probably unreasonable to expect the public generally to seize all the implications that lie in judicial opinions as they are delivered, but it ought not to be unreasonable to expect it to display vastly more interest than it does in appointments to the highest judicial posts and to exact the strictest standards in the choice of those who are to occupy them. For this there is more need than people probably realize at this time."

It is not at all improbable that many of those who are throwing all their strength into the New Deal socialistic juggernaut have but a pale conception of the road upon which they are traveling when they undermine the principles upon which this nation has built itself to stalwart strength beyond compare.

It is the privilege of children to putter along the summer lane indifferent in their innocence of where they are heading knowing that a parent's fondness will see them safely bedded on a soft pillow when limbs begin to tire. But grownups never have any right to become cynical of the great institutions their fathers have constructed, not at least while they are still partaking of their benefits. Law to our fathers was a collection of established principles to which it was our duty to remain faithful except as they were changed by established legal forms. In most instances the change could be affected by the legislative body but in some it was necessary to go to the people and ask for an alteration in the constitution.

It is a pity today that the administration is loaded with men who look upon this idea as rather medieval if not childish. Their notion is that the law is like a rubber band to be stretched or contracted just about at their convenience.

The men who are responsible for altering the constitution by altering the personnel of the supreme court and thus changing rules that have existed for 50 or 100 years, but always without consultation with or consent of the people, are doing their utmost to crack a great pillar of government.

ECONOMY IN CONGRESS

Reports issuing from Washington that the outlook is highly favorable in Congress for economy in government spending are encouraging but not entirely convincing.

Economy advocates are basing their hopes on the fact that Congress is faced with the alternative of staying within the budget or raising taxes and the national debt limit, a step which Congressmen are always reluctant to take in an election year. The sincere believers in economy say that these conditions favor them in their efforts to "sell" their colleagues and to resist the lobbying of the pressure groups.

Taxpayers everywhere will hope that this opinion is well founded though past records will raise serious doubts. Congress has only been in session about two weeks, and economy talk is always loudest and bravest at the beginning of a session. Then the pressure groups get to work with their lobbying. Even the home folks who are for economy in general are likely to rise up indignantly if the pruning shears threaten some pet project in their own territory. Presently it becomes apparent everyone is for economy—for everyone else.

About this time Congress begins to make exceptions to the economy talk and to refer to this "necessity" and that for which money must be voted. By the time the session nears adjournment the economy talk has died to a whisper and appropriations are being approved in a last minute scramble.

That has been the record. If it can be changed during this session, the country will benefit. A contribution to that end will be a show of as much willingness by the home folks to accept sacrifices for their own projects as well as for those of some other constituency.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

WHEN MOLLY ANN SINGS

When Molly Ann stands up to sing,
There is no rustling in the pews.
We only hear the whispering
Of angels; and the gentle dew
Of Heaven fall to bless us all,
So sweetly do the old hymns ring.

When Molly Ann's young voice sings out,
We feel our troubles fall away.

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN
(Editor's Note—The Brass Ring of admission to the Washington Merry-Go-Round's hall of fame is this week awarded to Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation since 1934.)

Washington—Of the many and diverse agencies spawned by the New Deal, you can count on the fingers of one hand those which have remained unscathed by criticism. And foremost among these is the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, whose chairman, Leo T. Crowley, soon will retire to private life.

The public has heard very little about Crowley. But neither has it heard very much in the last few years about long queues of frantic depositors standing outside of closed banks. That once quite common tragedy has disappeared completely from the American scene.

Today, when a bank shuts its doors, it does so as part of an orderly, regulated process of liquidation. There are no runs, no distraught depositors, no distressing personal and economic aftermath. Depositors get their money immediately and in full up to $5,000. Those with accounts above that figure have to wait for the balance, but in the end they get their cash.

Unquestionably the FDIC is the most spectacular outgrowth of the memorable banking collapse that gripped the nation in early 1933. Credit for the success of this great reform is due to two factors.

First is the federal deposit insurance act. Passed during the stress and strain of the early New Deal, both Republicans and Democrats now acclaim it. Last year the senate witnessed the extraordinary spectacle of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, bitter anti-New Dealer, and Senator John G. Townsend, rock-ribbed Delaware Republican, joining forces to give the FDIC greater administrative independence.

The second factor is Leo T. Crowley, who has made the FDIC one of the most vital forces in the American financial system, and yet who has worked so quietly and modestly that few of the 61,000,000 depositors whose earnings he has so efficiently guarded even know his name.

How FDIC Works

Secret of Crowley's remarkable record of preventing bank crashes has been his insistence on sound business practices.

No FDIC-insured bank (13,540 out of the 14,540 commercial banks in the country are FDIC members) is permitted to pay out dividends until all losses have been met. There are no piling up of frozen assets under Crowley. Also, before a bank is accepted in the FDIC is must satisfy three basic qualifications: (1) have adequate capital, (2) competent management, and (3) favorable business prospects.

If in spite of all these safeguards a bank runs into difficulty, then, as Crowley puts it, "we step in and administer our medicine." In the six years of its existence, FDIC has administered its potent medicine to 310 banks, paying out more than $151,000,000 and saving 890,000 depositors from loss. And all this has been done without grandstanding and without fanfare.

Illustration of how Crowley works was the quiet liquidation of the Title Guaranty and Trust company of Jersey City, a large bank with $21,000,000 in deposits. When FDIC examiners reported that the bank was shaky, Crowley immediately took charge and closed its doors. Ten days later every deposit up to $5,000 had been paid off in full—a total of $18,000,000 out of the $21,000,000.

In pre-FDIC days the collapse of this bank would have rocked the city—in fact, the whole region. Under Crowley there wasn't a flicker. Few people outside New Jersey even knew about it.

Up the Hard Way

There are two outstanding things about Crowley. One is his courtly gentleness; the other his quiet, inflexible liberalism.

He was a wealthy business man long before he came to Washington, and he had to climb the ladder of success the hard way. But there has been no stancher liberal in the New Deal. He has stood unmoving for the things he believes in, yet he has never indulged in personalities.

One of eight children, Crowley was forced by the death of his father to go to work as a delivery boy in a Madison, Wis., grocery at the age of 12. Ten years later he not only owned the store but had put himself through the University of Wisconsin. From then on he climbed steadily upward; so that by the time he was 40, Crowley was head of an oil company, of a paper supply firm, of a leading Wisconsin banking and was chairman of the Wisconsin Banking Review Board.

Henry Morgenthau was the first to commandeer Crowley's services. Morgenthau then was head of the Farm Credit Administration, and being impressed by what Crowley's bank was doing to aid farmers, he appointed Crowley director of the farm credit administration's northwest region a year later, when the deposit insurance act was passed, Crowley was Roosevelt's first choice to head the new agency.

The Man

Tall, stocky, meticulously groomed, he has a thick mane of prematurely snow white hair, and a wave that is the envy of the ladies. Never does he raise his voice and never does he use a word that could not be spoken in church. But there is nothing of the prudish about Crowley. No one in Washington is easier to approach, and his name to almost everyone is merely "Leo."

Fifty and a confirmed bachelor, Crowley's big passion is his job—whatever it happens to be. He lives simply, shuns the social whirl as much as he does the limelight, and his only recreations are a daily walk, an occasional movie or game of rummy.

One of Crowley's warmest friends is Senator Glass, whom he likes to josh regarding his caustic anti-New Deal views. During the 1936 campaign the two men were discussing the political outlook, when another Senator mischievously asked Glass why Virginia hadn't put a candidate in the field against Roosevelt.

"That's right, Carter," added Crowley, grinning, "Virginia is the mother of presidents, you know."

"Yes, I know," retorted Glass, "but she isn't pregnant this year."

A few weeks ago, when Crowley told the president he wanted to return to private life to head the $800,000,000 Standard Gas and Electric Co., Roosevelt looked out of the window for a moment, then said:

"Of course, Leo, I can't ask you to stay. This is too big an opportunity for you to give up. You've done your share here, long and faithfully. But I want you to know, my good friend, that your going will leave a big hole, for me personally and for the public."

It was characteristic of Crowley that his response was to assure Roosevelt he would remain at least until congress had adjourned.

Gone is the faltering and doubt
That was our portion yesterday.
Courage returns and our zeal burns.
We will win yet! Our hearts are stout!

When Molly Ann starts to arise
Our spirits, too, are on the wing.
For all that we would realize
Is in the song that she will sing:
The starry hope toward which we grope,
The dream of our own Paradise!

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Congress never stages a better show than in its periodic anti-lynching debates.

Grover

Representative Gavigan, author of this year's bill, comes from New York's Harlem, although he is white and Irish as he can be.

There isn't a solitary member of congress who honestly thinks the bill will get through the senate this year even though it went through the house by a wide margin. Southern senators would die in their seats before they would let it get to a vote. It would pass for sure if the senate had a chance to vote on it.

There were only three lynchings last year. That proves, say southern members, that lynching is under control and the southern states need no federal whip-lash to make them do it. The bill would permit the federal government to jail local officials where a lynching occurred and make the county pay up to $10,000 to relatives of the victim.

Privately, some southern members will tell you that while they don't approve of mob operations, there is nothing that quiets the southern negro populations so much as "a damn good lynching."

Not so, says Representative Creal of Kentucky, a southerner who thinks the bill should pass.

"There is a theory," he says, "that mob violence terrorizes and thereby has a better effect than an ordinary electrocution. Why not adopt a law in Kentucky which provided that in cases of rape the execution should be by public hanging? In the case of a public hanging they came from miles around and when that public execution took place it had a more deterrent effect than 75 or 100 people dragging a man off in the dark and hanging him."

'Slut On Womanhood'

Once, he says, he forestalled a lynching by proving that a little girl, the supposed victim, had lied.

Hotly Representative Cox of Georgia bounds to his feet: "The gentleman is casting a damnable reflection upon the young womanhood of the south."

"The thing which I regret most," says Representative Summers of Texas, "is this attempt to concentrate of federal power—this testimony of the great House of Representatives that democratic institutions in the United States have failed, and that it is required that the great federal government shall step in and be given the power to take the officers of a state from their business and send them to the penitentiary because, forsooth, they have not carried out a congressional edict... That is what is destroying this democracy—a nation of people afflicted with 'federalitis.'"

Northern members argue that lynchings are a blatant violation of the fourteenth amendment designed to give equal legal rights to the colored people of Kansas. The judicial committee had passed on the constitutionality of the bill before the house had to vote on it.

"I say to my friend from Kansas," replies Sam Hobbs of Alabama, "that I do not believe that he would have paid a bit more attention to the opinion of the committee on the judiciary if it had been adverse to his belief than the colored man in Uniontown, Ala., did to the newly installed traffic light. He stood parked in his Model T for 15 minutes watching the new contraption and then went right through on the red light. He was arrested and taken before the Mayor. He said to me: 'I didn't mean no harm. I never seed one of them things before. I stood there for 15 minutes, and I seed all the white folks going through on the green light, so I figured naturally that the red must be for us niggers.'"

Pontifically, Representative Fish of New York gets up.

"As long as there is one single lynching in the land," says he, "if this bill fails to pass the senate, another anti-lynching bill will be introduced here, because we propose to enact a federal law against lynching until lynching is wiped out in this country. As long as law and liberty are protected by guarantee of the constitution, how can anyone ask for less?"

Just a Step Behind the News

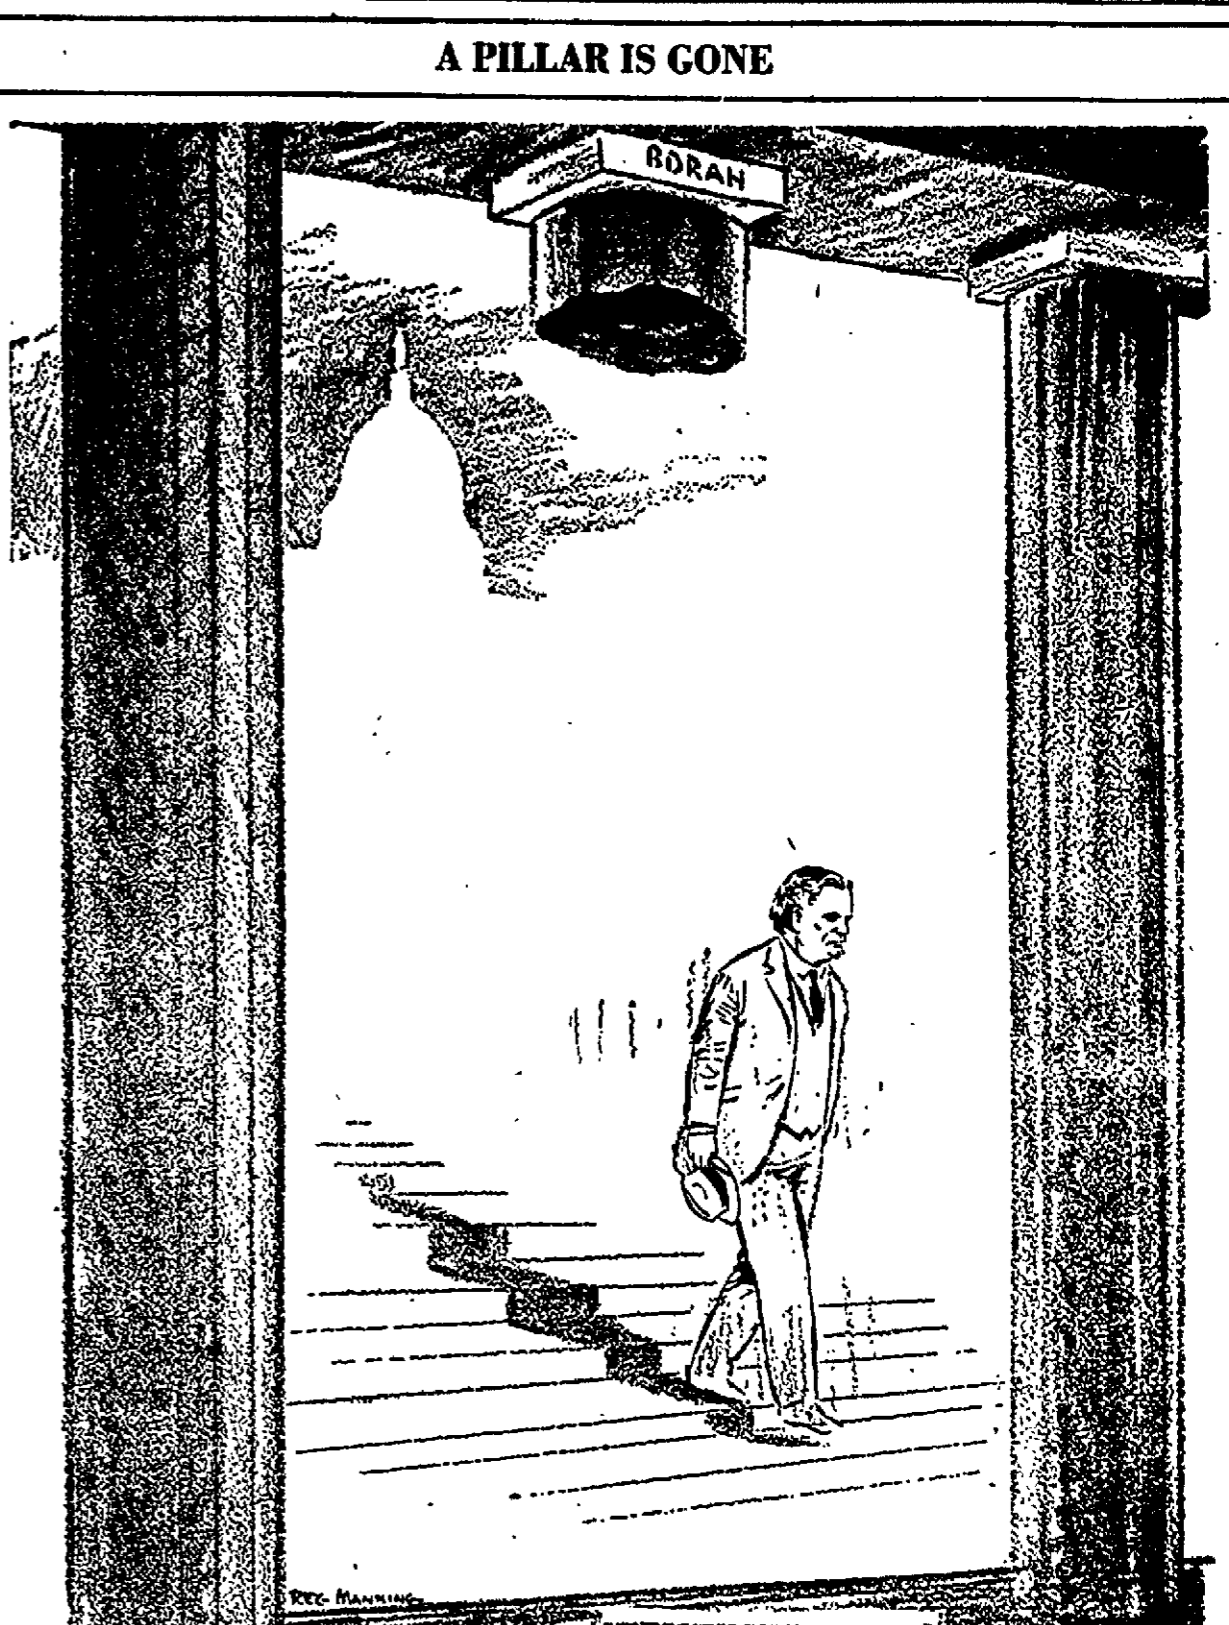

By Dave Boone

When congressmen vote down a proposal for more money for new post offices it's at least a little encouraging, Jim O'Connor of Montana said the folks back home would be hurt if they didn't get better post offices. But it only got a laugh. Everybody knows that the outstanding architectural masterpieces of America are those new streamlined, air-conditioned, deluxe model postoffices everywhere.

When you visited a city or town and asked to see the show place they used to point out some millionaire's estate. Now they just point out the new post office.

A good many of 'em are the Metro-Goldwyn idea of what a post office should look like. I've seen some new ones in small towns that had it all over a country club in swankiness. They have everything but the swimming pool, the built-in bar and the bowling alley. And they have room for those.

Congressman O'Connor wanted the appropriation for new federal buildings and post offices jumped from $15,000,000 to $37,000,000. Well, if they build 'em any bigger they'll have to put roller skates on the postal clerks so they can cut down

A PILLAR IS GONE

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Probably the most persistent political rumor in Wisconsin today, as for several months past, is the yarn that Senator LaFollette is seriously considering a bolt from his own Progressive party ticket in order to seek reelection on the Democratic or Republican ticket.

Wyngaard

Most political reporters in the capital don't take the story too seriously. Progressive spokesmen angrily characterize it as a malicious canard manufactured by Republican propagandists to demoralize the Progressive organization machine.

Best explanation available is that the story gained circulation precisely because Senator LaFollette has been silent on the subject. More and more the question is heard, "If it isn't true, why doesn't he say so?"

Aside from that, the yarn has been bolstered by nervous Republicans and ambitious Democrats, the former alarmed at the prospect of a return to the pre-1934 days, when the LaFollette controlled the Republican party to the acute discomfort of the Stalwarts; the latter hopeful that a candidacy by LaFollette on their ticket may salvage what are at present exceedingly dreary prospects for the Wisconsin Democracy in the state field.

The decision of the state supreme court this week which invalidated the state privilege dividend tax law as it applied to foreign corporations had an ironic meaning for J. Ward Rector, chief of staff in the office of Attorney General John E. Martin.

Several years ago Rector filed a brief on behalf of the Wisconsin Manufacturers association attacking the constitutionality of the privilege dividend tax. The issue concerned a domestic corporation, but the court's opinion was broad enough to enable lawyers since that time to argue that it covered foreign corporations also.

Since that time Rector has left private practice and become No. 1 lawyer in the attorney general's office, with a duty to represent the state in court. When various chain stores recently asked the high court to veto the privilege dividend tax as it affected foreign corporations, Rector assigned Harold Persons, a tax expert, to argue the state's case. Persons based his argument mainly on the earlier court decision sustaining the law.

In the meantime, however, the court had apparently changed its mind and this week Rector saw it rendering ineffective, over his arguments, the law which he a couple of years earlier had argued was unconstitutional. Effect was to put him in the position of being defeated on both sides of the question.

BIG QUESTION
A question to which many of the foremost politicians in the state would like to have an answer today concerns the attitude of the Progressive party voters in the Democratic and Republican delegate campaigns this spring.

Aside from the prospect that there may be a pro-Roosevelt campaign by some ranking Progressive leader, if the president becomes a candidate, it now appears that most of the party members will be free-lancing. Evidence to support that prediction was found this week with the announcement of former Senator Roland Kannenberg of Wausau, one of the most fervent of the northern Progressives, that he will be out-trotting the horn of Tom Dewey, Vandenberg, Farley, and McNutt Progressives will also appear, according to talk by capital Progressives.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Tomatoes Contain Citric Acid
Do tomatoes or tomato juice when fresh contain the same vitamins and fruit acids as oranges or lemons? (S. C. O.)

Ans.—Tomatoes contain the same fruit acid, citric acid, as the citrus fruits do. They contain nearly if not quite as much vitamin C as oranges, as much vitamin B-complex, rather more vitamin A. Fresh or vacuum canned, whole fruit or juice.

Beverage
We have been told the beverage contains "dope" and is habit forming. As we have used it frequently we are anxious to know. (H. S. W.)

Ans.—A glass of it is equivalent in effect to a small cup of sweetened weak tea or coffee. No beverage

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

NUTRITION AND CIRCULATION

The late Sir James Mackenzie did the spade work in the building of his reputation as a country doctor and brought his hard earned eminence as a heart specialist to Harley Street with him. Mackenzie's textbook, Diseases of the Heart, first published in 1908, belongs alongside of Osler's "Practice of Medicine" on every doctor's thirty-foot book shelf.

Referring to the symptoms (what the patient feels or complains of) and physical signs (what the doctor observes or finds by examination) of heart disease, Mackenzie said:

"The most severe exhaustion and extensive degeneration may be present and yield no physical sign." In other words it does not necessarily follow, as doctors sometimes assume, that a heart is normal if the physical examination elicits no sign of anything wrong.

Sir James Mackenzie, cardiologist, was a paragon of medical specialism. By long years in general practice he acquired knowledge and experience in the diagnosis and treatment of diseases of the heart. There are few real specialists of that character among the raft of brass specialists in Yankeland—medical merchants who have the guts to hold themselves out as specialists almost from the day they receive a license to practice, and by virtue of the gullibility of the unsophisticated laity compete unfairly with the honest family doctor for the people's patronage. Through Mackenzie's book the student intern or seasoned practitioner perceives the solid foundations on which the author's observations and teachings rest.

That part of the heart muscle's force which is called upon when the body makes some effort Mackenzie called "reserve force." He dwells upon the fact that exhaustion of the reserve force is made evident in the first instance only by subjective sensations, that is, by symptoms, what the patient feels or complains of, and not by physical signs which the physician can find by examining the patient or the heart.

The word "vitamin" cannot be found in Mackenzie's book. Oh, well I have behaved up to now. From this point onward, please understand, it is just Ol' Doc Brady sounding off.

I have a brand new monograph for you. A pink 'un. Send for it, enclosing a stamped envelope bearing your address. It deals with "Reserve Power." Reserve power covers much more than just Mackenzie's "reserve force." One of the blessings enjoyed by the individual with vit, as I have defined vit, here and there, is "an adequate fund of reserve power to tide over emergencies and strains."

If only there were room I could cite numerous authorities upon whose observations and conclusions I base the teaching that impaired circulation and low reserve force in the heart is commonly due to moderate nutritional deficiency, particularly insufficient daily intake of the essential vitamins B-complex and D. Some day before long we'll trot out a few of these authorities.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Tomatoes Contain Citric Acid
Do tomatoes or tomato juice when fresh contain the same vitamins and fruit acids as oranges or lemons? (S. C. O.)

Ans.—Tomatoes contain the same fruit acid, citric acid, as the citrus fruits do. They contain nearly if not quite as much vitamin C as oranges, as much vitamin B-complex, rather more vitamin A. Fresh or vacuum canned, whole fruit or juice.

Beverage

offered to the general public contains any "dope".

Guinea Pigs Cheap
Are humans used as guinea-pigs? I would like to offer myself for such purpose in the interest of science. I am so tired of hunting without success for a job. (E. J.)

Ans.—Occasionally for experiments on diet and the like, but there is seldom any dearth of volunteers among students.

Iodine
From the clipping inclosed it would seem there may be danger of getting cancer from taking your iodine ration. But unless we hear from you to the contrary we intend to continue with it—we believe the iodine ration has kept us young for many years. (M. H.)

Answer.—Thank you—the same clipping came in from many readers. Article in a magazine, by a "Doctor" of some vague sort, implies that "overdose" of iodine may cause cancer. Boy, it beats all what profound knowledge of cancer these "minent specialists" far away have. Everybody needs a nip of iodine regularly through the year. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for Instruction for Taking an Iodine Ration.

Paternity Test
You stated "in about three cases out of ten a blood grouping test will prove that a given parent is not the parent of a putative child." Does it follow that in the other seven cases the given person is the parent? I am being accused of perjury and need to know. (E. C. M.)

Answer.—If the person and the putative child have the same blood type or belong to the same group, that proves nothing, as millions have the same blood. But if the test shows the putative parent has blood of a type or group different from the child's blood type or group that proves the person is not the parent of the child.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A SHORT HISTORY OF RUSSIA
X—Stalin Slowly Built Up His Power
Some of the facts about Josef Stalin have become known fairly widely. He was born in a part of Russia called Georgia, and is not a true Russian. "Stalin" is a nickname, and means "steel". Stalin's family name was a long one—Dzhughashvili.

Stalin at the age of about 35. While Lenin was alive, Stalin was one of his helpers, but was not in nearly such a high place as Leon Trotsky.

We are told that Lenin kept thinking of what might happen in Russia after his death, and that he made out a "will." In this will, he is supposed to have warned the Russians against letting much power get into Stalin's hands.

If there really was such a will, it did not become known to most of the Russian people when Lenin died. Possibly Stalin obtained control of it, and destroyed it.

Stalin works behind the scenes. Slowly but surely, over a period of several years, he built up his power and drove his enemies from office. Today he does not hold a government office, but he is secretary of the Communist party. It is believed that officers of the government do just what Stalin wants them to do.

Chief among the enemies of Stalin was Trotsky, who had been a great hero of the Russian people. Trotsky was driven into exile, and of late has been living in Mexico.

Other enemies of Stalin have been put to death in Russia. Often the excuse has been that they were friendly to Trotsky, or to his ideas.

Until five months ago, most persons inside and outside of Russia believed Stalin was steering the country on a road to peace. Then came a treaty with Hitler which made many suspect he was plotting war, though the nation's spokesmen said Russia still wanted to stay at peace.

About seven weeks ago, the world was shocked when Russia began striking blows at Finland, a little republic which had been part of Russia until the world war.

During the coming week, I plan to write something about the history of Finland, and about the Finns' bold defense of their homeland.

Bidding Is Final Guide In Close Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The final guide to a close decision in the play of the cards often can be found in the preceding bidding. The "wizardry" of certain experts is nothing more than the manifestation of their ability to appraise accurately the bids of the defenders.

In today's hand the declarer had two possible lines of play, each offering a distinct chance of success. West, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

Q J 10 6 5
K Q 10 6
A K 6
WEST
K Q 9 7 6 2
A K 7
A 9 4
EAST
A J 8 5 4 3
SOUTH
None
Q J 10 8 5 4 3 2

The bidding:
West North East South
1 spade Double 4 spades 5 clubs
5 spades Double Pass Pass

West had a close decision to make over the five club bid. His three honor tricks outside of the spade suit made a double tempting, but in my opinion he was correct in bidding five spades. It was perfectly obvious that North had a generally good hand and that South, therefore, must have fairly treacherous distribution in order to bid at the five level. West felt that there was a very good chance of making five spades and was even willing to settle for a one or even two trick penalty.

North opened the king of clubs and then shifted to the queen of hearts. Declarer won and took out the only outstanding spade. Next he led the king of hearts and ruffed his losing heart in dummy. With no more clubs or hearts in either dummy or his own hand, declarer's only problem was to find a way to avoid the loss of two diamond tricks. There were two possibilities: One, that either North or South had one of the honors only singly guarded. In that case, the lead of the ace and a low diamond would force that defender on lead with only clubs or hearts to return, either of which would allow declarer to discard his other losing diamond and ruff in dummy. Had there been nothing to go by in the bidding this would have been the correct plan. But the declarer gave a great deal of thought to North's take-out double of the one spade as well as his final penalty double of the five spade bid. Knowing North to be a conservative player, declarer felt sure that he must have upward of three honor tricks for his take-out double, which strongly pointed to the conclusion that he held both the king and queen of diamonds as well as the ace-king of clubs.

On this analysis declarer returned to his hand with a trump and led, not the ace of diamonds, but a low one up to dummy's jack. This play made North helpless. He was forced to go up with his queen and had the Hobson's choice of giving declarer a ruff and a discard by leading a club or a heart, or of returning a diamond into the East-West combined tenace.

TOO MANY GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Post: How can gift givers be discouraged? Naturally, I do not want to seem unappreciative of kindness, or to hurt the feelings of my pupils, but it has reached the point where I'm embarrassed to take the expensive gifts of three particular children whose presents have been increasing in number and value. And to make matters worse, I cannot afford to buy presents for these children.

Answer: When one of them brings you a present again you will have to take it, of course. But after you say thank you and tell her how beautiful it is, you can then explain confidentially that it is really too important a present to bring you—and please not to make the other children feel they should do the same, and also that it embarrasses you to be put under obligations which you cannot repay. So far as etiquette is concerned, presents from teacher to children are not to be thought of—ever.

The Wedding Music
Dear Mrs. Post: My fiancée's sister, who is married and does not live in this town, is an organist of some note. She is coming to the wedding. May I take the liberty of asking her to play at my wedding? Should this offer come from her? I have never met her.

Answer: The best thing to do is to ask your fiancée to find out on his own account whether or not she would like to play. He might explain that he knows you would of course like to have her but don't want to ask this much of a favor of her. If she tells her brother that she wants to play at his wedding, then you write her a note and begin, "John has just told me the good news that you have promised to play at the wedding." Then add how happy you and John both are, etc.

A Mistrial in This Column
Dear Mrs. Post: Recently in one of your newspaper answers you spelled the Jr. after a man's name with a small j. I wondered if you

This fascinating beauty takes delight in displaying her exquisite evening compact of burgundy French enamel with a royal crest of brilliants.

Two men I know constantly debate whether women dress to impress other women, or to allure men! One argues that wives certainly grow slack in their personal grooming after a couple of years of married life. Once she gets her man she loses interest!

The other argues that no woman would wear the current stylish hats if she was trying to attract the attention or admiration of men—for men think the hats are crazy! Therefore she must dress to impress other women.

It truly doesn't make any difference why women dress up, as long as they do now and then. Some women I know vie with their female friends in wearing the most expensive, the most glamorous of clothes. Other women I know wear soft felt brimmed hats because they feel "men like those sports hats." So I think the feminine motive for wearing finery is evenly divided.

The only fault I find is that the majority of women do not primp up often enough. A woman should not let one week pass without getting in her best bib and tucker, after a thorough body grooming, and going out to some minor or major festivity. Getting out in the company of other men and women inspires good grooming, and also serves to reward us for the time we spend keeping attractive. If a woman never goes out she has little incentive for keeping lovely looking—unless she gets a personal satisfaction from simply preserving good looks.

Give a woman a handsome new evening bag, or long white gloves or a new hat and she immediately begins to plan where she can go to show off her new possession! That is if she is not too discouraged from the trials and tribulations of life. Then she needs a week's holiday instead of a new bonnet! Or she needs both!

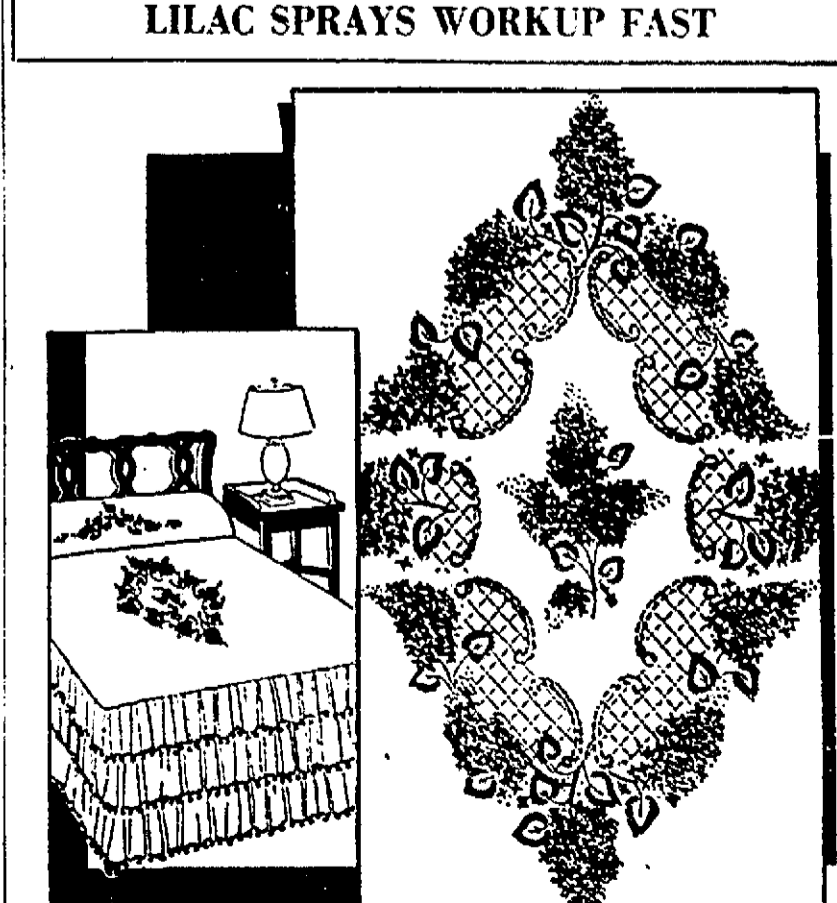

Pretty clothes and other ornaments were meant to be enjoyed not only by those who wear them but by those who see them. That is why women adorn themselves meant to do this or whether it was an error in printing my material. I've always thought junior was spelled with a small j if written in full, and with a capital J when abbreviated.

Answer: You are entirely right, and if it appeared in this column any other way it was simply a mistake in setting the type, which happens rarely.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. # Simple Methods are Best for Solving Childhood Problems

BY ANGELO PATRI

I listened to an earnest teacher striving to tell a roomful of teachers, many of them gray in the service, how to deal with children. For forty-five minutes he poured words out upon us. Long hard words, strange words with many syllables. Orientation, maximated, authoritarian, nihilistic aggression and their like.

Of course we understood the meaning of the words. We were all trained teachers, but we felt that all the while the brave man wrestled with language that he was obscuring the child, this "bad child" he was trying to help us with, by this tide of sound.

The great facts of life are so simple a child can call them by name. The words we use for them are small, short sounds, rich with the meanings the centuries have rolled into them. There is no need for this ponderous vocabulary and much need for the simpler, more direct mode of speaking. Parents are frightened by the high-sounding terms, and young teachers, those who deal directly with the child in question, are stunned by them. Let's try to keep simple and be understood.

Simple Words are Best

Children are elemental beings for what doctors study to discover why that makes children what they are, and maybe they need these terms for accuracy in talking to each other. For the rest of the world the simpler words are best.

In any case, all the study in the world, all the scientific knowledge that the best mind can wrest from nature, fails in the presence of one human child. If you doubt that, take one abnormal child to the specialist. He will do his best. He will measure and test and fill out the blanks. He will suggest a routine of treatment and care. And then he will say, "Try." Never if he is the honest person a scientist is by nature, never will he say, "Surely this is true." He does not know. Neither do you who live with the child. Neither do I who try to teach him. We hope; we trust; we try. And what simple words those are for such tremendous qualities of spirit.

Let's hold to the simplicities of life when we can. They are beyond our best efforts, but at least we won't obscure them with language and many gestures. When we meet an unusual child let us study him with all the power our scientific research has given us, but let us keep the essential simplicities and express them in simple terms. All wisdom is not in this generation. Some of it came down to us through the years. Our grandmothers put a bad child to bed and gave him a physic, and that is about what the most informed children's specialist will do with the same child today. Grandmother would say, "He's in bad temper." Maybe the specialist will say, "He is hostile and aggressive toward his environment." The answer is the same. Quiet, rest, care. Simple words for tremendous qualities.

"Bad" children are not found among happy children. Something went wrong before they went "bad." Mayor LaGuardia's prescription of a good beefsteak for the bad boy is as fundamental a cure as can be found. Three square meals a day, a decent home, a fair chance to grow, and the bad-child problem is solved. It is as simple as that.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Wife Can be Entertaining if She Tries, Miss Dix Believes

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix—In a recent article you spoke of a wife keeping her husband nailed to his own fireside and from phylandering with other women by entertaining and amusing him. In what way can she do this? If you can answer that, you know what you are talking about. If you can't, you don't. Don't duck this question.

A READER.

Answer: I won't. And it doesn't require any I.Q. shark to answer it, either. Nor does it demand that the wife shall be a vaudeville artist with a repertoire of thrilling, amazing, amusing, colossal, side-splitting stunts that she can put on in order to keep her lord and master diverted. Nor does she have to be a fan dancer like Sally Rand, nor a wisecracker like Dorothy Parker, nor a singer like Grace Moore.

All that a wife needs to keep her husband entertained and amused at home is to use the same technique after marriage that she used before, and every woman who has got her man knows exactly what that is. She knows what went over big with him when he was courting her and unless she is a moron, she is only put on her act. Only she gets too lazy, or too overconfident to do it. Now it is a matter of common knowledge that the No. 1 enemy of marriage is boredom. It incites husbands and wives to quarreling. It makes them yawn in each other's faces. It starts them out to hunt talk. And being good company. It is as simple as that.

Marriage Requires Broad Mindedness

Dear Miss Dix—I am a divorcee, aged 23, with a child 4 years old. I am about to marry again, but my fiancée has told me that he loves children and wants some of his own, and I have told him that I will not have another child because I feel that my boy would be neglected if I had other children. I feel that if this man really loves me he will be satisfied with my boy and me. Don't you think I am right? MISS.

Answer: Certainly not. Your position is utterly preposterous. For how could you expect this man who loves children and has the paternal instinct to feel to another man's child as if it were his own, or to be willing to deny himself the joy of his own flesh and blood children in order that a stepchild may have no rival? Unless you can be more broadminded and unselfish than that, you had best stay single.

The Bible Has a Phrase for It
Dear Miss Dix—My husband is one of the finest characters I have ever known. He teaches a Bible class; works in church and any organization that is for the uplift of humanity; is charitable to a fault; seems to detest anything immoral; is regarded as one of the finest Christians and is much esteemed. We have been married more than twenty years and he has been devoted to me. Takes me with him to most places he goes and when he is away writes each day telling how lonely he is without me and how anxious he is to get back. BUT he has had many affairs with women. Recently when he was away and writing me these letters he had another woman with him. What do you think of him? DISTRESSED WIFE.

Answer: The Bible calls a man like that a "whited sepulchre" and I don't think you can improve on the description.

FINGER-FOOD TREATS

For holiday party tables, scoop out tiny rolls, butter the insides and when ready for the table heap the insides with some cold salad; crab, chicken, tuna, tongue or shrimp are topics.

Combine gingham, sharkskin and terry cloth for smart play-clothes. Vacationing recently in the desert, Lana Turner chose to take along for leisure hours a two-piece playsuit. The suit itself was in sharkskin with an inset of taffeta gingham in bright blue and white marching up the front and continuing to form the bodice. Terry cloth made the jacket practical after swimming and the hood lined in matching gingham protected her curls from the hot sun.

Stevenson rated being a good gossip as among the most desirable qualities that a wife could possess, and most men secretly agree with him. At any rate, no matter how our husbands berate us for talking scandal, there isn't a wife who can't testify that her husband never stops her until she has told the last malicious detail.

Before marriage a girl's best play is always talking to a man about the things in which he is interested. She listens with rapt attention while he discourses about his business, his hobbies, his car. She laughs at his jokes. She begs him to repeat his funny stories. And one of the main reasons he leads her to the altar is to get a good listener.

But how many wives do you know who even make a pretense of listening to their husbands when they talk? A wife will glance over a paper while her husband is trying to explain his hopes and plans to her. She will say, "For heaven's sake, don't tell that old joke again." She will interrupt him in the midst of his best story to say, "Look at the kitten!" Many a husband has to go away from home to get any one to lend him their ears.

There is no mystery about amusing and entertaining husbands. It is just saying to a man the things he would like to have said to him. Listening to him when he wants to

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Every employer and teacher, as well as every parent and married person, should memorize the provocative story about John in today's Case Record. Very high school students who are employing these daily psychology articles in class, might try out my COMPLIMENT CLUB plan, whereby you pay 3 different persons a sincere compliment each day for 30 days. Notice the remarkable improvement in yourselves and your increased popularity.

CASE P-160: John, aged 7 mentally, was a mature man in physical development. He was an inmate of a state institution for the feeble-minded, and has been admirably described by one of America's pioneer psychologists, Professor H. H. Goddard, of Ohio State University.

One morning John came down to the barns and bluntly said he wasn't going to do any plowing that day.

The supervisor, of course, could have compelled him to harness his horses and get his plow in action, but he didn't.

Instead, he expressed sympathy and concern over the condition of John's health. He urged John to go ly as he possibly could. There was no resentment in his mind. He didn't sulk and pout or do a careless job.

What produced this remarkable change in John? It wasn't a tangible stimulus like ice cream and cake, or a new suit of clothes, or even a shiny new pocket knife.

It was simply a few sentences uttered within his hearing.

The Power Of Compliments
These few sentences had no market value in dollars and cents nor could they be carried around and shown to other workers. They were just little puffs of air that struck John's eardrums.

But they were very special puffs of air. They were comprehensible words which conveyed an important compliment to John. They meant that he was superior in some line of work; that he was a desirable man in the eyes of his boss. They inflated his ego or vanity.

Since John has the mentality of but a 7-year-old child, you can readily see how effective praise can be with children. Too often we adults bark orders in military fashion, or scold and nag and criticize.

Such behavior on our part never produces the delighted, expansive feeling which John enjoyed. Criticism deflates our pride and makes us angry, resentful, or pouting. We thereafter dislike the job and the boss, though we may be compelled to go through the motions of working.

The Sun Versus The Wind
Perhaps you adults will remember the story in our grammar school readers about the sun and wind who competed to make a traveler remove his coat.

The wind blew fiercely, only to find that the man hugged his coat more tightly around himself. But when the sun shone down benignly, the man soon discarded his coat.

Compliments act like the sun in the above story, whereas criticism are more like the effect of the wind. We shrink and hide under scolding, but expand and delight in our work when we receive commendation.

It works this way with children as well as with adults, and with husbands as well as wives. Try it out as an experiment. Send a dime and long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for the application blank and rules for the "COMPLIMENT CLUB."

One Is Beloved

BY LOUISE PLATT HAUCK

YESTERDAY: Bob refuses to be snubbed, and Sue gets used to having him around. Allen is still hinting about bringing home a wife, but Sue doesn't take him seriously.

Chapter Eight
Week Before Christmas
Sue laid down her book, smiled up at him.

"But I know all your friends now, Allen! Know the girls you like, and don't like. I used to hope that if it had to be anyone at all, it would be Barbara. But you don't care for her at all, do you, Bob?"

He lighted a cigarette deliberately, squinted his eyes against the rising smoke in a way dear to her through long familiarity.

"Not Barbara. No, I don't care at all for Barbara Webb. Known her too long. I expect; as you have for."

"And there was that young widow who visited here last winter."

Sue went on, unheeding. "For a while I got a little scared about her, if you'll believe me! You did hover around her a bit, you know, Allen."

"Scared, Sis? Why should you have been scared—if I'd hovered to some purpose? Follows to get married, you know; even fellows with sisters."

"I know; and some day you will, too, of course. But not just yet, Buddy dear! Not when we're so happy together, and life's such a lot of fun for both of us, and Maggie takes care of us, and you're forging ahead so fast in your work."

"Had you set a definite date for me to marry, Sue?"

Usually her car was quick to detect every shade of feeling in the beloved voice; but tonight she lay back in her chair, dreaming eyes on the fire, her happy thoughts only partly on what she and Allen were saying.

"Thirty-five's a nice age, don't you think, Buddy? That'd make me twenty-nine. I want to be married before I'm thirty. I don't want to settle down too soon, and miss all the fun."

"It might be fun having your own home, Sis; having kids, you know—being young with 'em yourself." But it was of no use. She only nodded and smiled, presently spoke of something else. And so Bob Trenton's news the week before Christmas almost shattered her very soul.

She and Barbara had been shopping all day, lurching downtown, coming home through the early dusk with packages they could not wait to have delivered.

"Coming in, Babs? I'll give you a cup of tea!"

"No, thanks! Early dinner to-night, as it happens. Going with the parents to a concert like the delightful daughter I am."

So Sue, her arms piled high with gaily wrapped bundles and unable to get at her latchkey, rang the bell for Maggie to open the door.

"Mr. Bob's here," the old servant said briefly. "Want I should bring in some tea?"

"Hello, Bob! Been here long? Maggie wants to know if you'd like tea."

"No tea, thank you. Only a few minutes to stay, sweet."

Firelight
"You're not to call me 'sweet,'" the protest was purely automatic, unheeded, almost unheard by them both. "Oh, me, I'm tired! The shops are simply jammed. It's fun, though, Christmas shopping. Everybody's so friendly, you overhear so many odds and ends of interesting bits about what people want for themselves and what they are buying for others."

Anything about it, from the first wreath that goes up to the last holiday party! Want a light on, Bob, or shall we just ruminate in the firelight for a while?"

"Firelight, by all means. I want to talk to you, Sue."

"Bob, you solemnly promised—"

"It's not about me, sweet; at least it's not about me. It's about—Allen."

"Allen?" She started up in alarm. "He's not ill, Bob? There's not been an accident?"

"He was in the best of health when I saw him last—some two hours ago. Sit down, Sue. It's nothing to do with accidents—illness of any kind. But the old boy's in sort of a jam, and I promised to try my hand at—well, at making you get his point of view."

"Jam? Allen?" Vague thoughts of defunct banks carrying away their funds, of a loss of her brother's position, of all the things of which she had heard which were commonly referred to as "jams" for men, floated through her mind. "Tell me at once, Bob!" she commanded sharply.

He shook his head. "The idea was that I work tactfully up to it," he explained. "In fact, I promised Allen I'd do just that. He says he's tried it himself, time and again, but you're so darned unconscious, you change the subject so innocently but with such finality, that he never gets anywhere with it."

"He cleared his throat with the first traces of embarrassment she had pretty soon in him. 'I know I'm a pretty new friend to be doing this—anything so intimate as this—for the old—half a dozen others. But it just happens that I—'

"Well, you stop babbling and tell me what is wrong with my brother Allen!"

"Nothing's wrong," he replied doggedly. "You certainly can't call it wrong when a guy marries the girl he loves!"

An electrified silence fell upon them both. Sue sat gripping the arms of her chair as if they only could support her in the face of this devastating news. Bob, with a worried glance at her pale face and big dark eyes, bent to lay a fresh log on the fire.

"M-m-married?" The word came out in the merest essence of Sue's charming voice. "Allen married—and without telling me?"

"It's your own fault, Sue," he said bracingly. "You wouldn't let him tell you. Why, I've heard him trying to tell me, I've heard him trying to tell you about his getting on in years and needing a wife—"

"Ragging—yes! He's done that for years. But meant it, oh! your funny ragging story, Bob! I, your funny idea of a joke to make in here and give me a scare! Her piteous glance begged him to admit it was intended for a joke. When he merely eyed her sympathetically, the back of her

Sleighrides, Sport, Formal Dances, Founders' Day Event On College Social Calendar

SLEIGHRIDES, a sport dance, a formal dance and a Founders' day dinner give variety to the weekend social program at Lawrence college. Last night about 35 persons attended the Alpha Chi Omega sorority sleighride, a birthday gift from the Alpha Chi Omega Mothers club. The Lawrence college chapter of the sorority will be 10 years old next month. After the ride the group went to the Lawrence student union for warm refreshments.

Tonight Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity will have a sleighride party, and Phi Alpha fraternity will entertain at a sport dance at its house for active pledges and their dates. Active and pledges of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority will observe the sorority's Founders' day at a dinner at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Candle Glow Tea room. Miss June Selvy, Green Bay, social chairman of the sorority, is being assisted with the arrangements by

Music Will be Feature of Club Guest Program

SELECTIONS from the Finnish composer, Jean Sibelius, and the Norwegian composer, Edvard Grieg, will be played by Cyrus Daniel, professor of theory and composition at Lawrence Conservatory of Music, and Lester Loehrke, Neenah, at the guest day meeting of the Monday club at Mrs. A. F. Tuttle's home, 524 E. North street, at 2:30 Monday afternoon. Mr. Daniel will play the piano, and Mr. Loehrke, the violin.

On the hostess committee for the afternoon will be Mrs. Harold Hamilton, Mrs. Eva Russell, Mrs. John Wilson, Mrs. F. M. Johnston and Mrs. F. H. Richmond.

Outstanding books of 1939 were discussed briefly by Mrs. Nancy B. Thomas, librarian at Appleton Public Library, at the meeting of Appleton Girls club Friday night at the Woman's club. Letters were read from Miss Mary Sands, Milwaukee, Miss Jane Barclay who is in California, and Miss Lynda Hummel, Seattle, Wash.

Twenty-two members were present. Hostesses included Miss Vera Flynn, Miss Edith Van Stratum and Miss Emma Schwandt.

Mrs. Stephan A. Konz, 50 Bellaire court, will be hostess to the Monday Study club Monday afternoon at her home. Mrs. Don Morrissey will have charge of the program on biography.

Mrs. F. G. Wheeler, 810 E. College avenue, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, is in Milwaukee today attending a meeting of the state board of the organization at the Pfister hotel. One of the topics being discussed is the restoration of the surgeon's quarters at Fort Winnebago at Portage, a state project of the D. A. R. Work on the restoration will start shortly after the state D. A. R. convention in March at La Crosse.

Couple Is Feted on Silver Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Weber, route 1, Appleton, who observed their silver wedding anniversary Friday, were surprised by the following friends and neighbors last night:

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ulrich and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Williams and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krueger, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bast, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kaufman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Welhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Suttner and family, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kloes and family, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Missling, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Berg and family, Harold and Raymond Bissing, Miss Marjorie Suring, James Hughes and Earl and John Woods.

Card and dice games and community singing provided the evening's entertainment. Prize winners at schafskopf were Mrs. Arthur Krueger, Mrs. Lawrence Kaufman, Mr. Joe Ulrich and Joe Williams, and at dice, Mrs. Louis Suttner and Mrs. Joe Williams.

BOWLING TAKES PROMINENT PLACE AMONG WOMEN'S WINTER ACTIVITIES

In any list of women's winter activities, bowling must take a prominent place. The indoor sport has as many fans as skiing and skating if the large number of women who frequent Appleton's bowling alleys are any indication. At the Y.M.C.A. the other afternoon the photographer found the young women in three of these pictures. At the extreme left, putting on their bowling shoes, were Mrs. Orville Myse, 705 N. Appleton street, and Mrs. Ray Risch, 814 E. John street. Attesting to the femininity of the gathering, Mrs. Albert Kopulos, 319 N. Appleton street, in the second picture, repaired her makeup while she awaited her next turn.

In the center inset is Miss Margaret Plank, 340 W. Prospect avenue, who bowls at the Eagles alleys Friday nights. Looking down the alley in the next picture is Mrs. Urban Marr, 1019 N. Fair street. At the scoreboard at the extreme right are, left to right, Mrs. Beatrice Bilodeau, 225 N. Meade street, Miss Annette Plank, 340 W. Prospect avenue, and Mrs. Joseph Verrier, 238 E. Calumet street. Mrs. Bilodeau and Mrs. Verrier are sisters. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Miss Leone Steidl Becomes Bride of Charles W. Miller

CARRYING a white prayer book which belonged to her mother, Miss Leone Margaret Steidl, daughter of George C. Steidl, 537 N. Lawe street, became the bride of Charles Williams Miller, 517 S. Locust street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Miller, Decatur, Ill., at a nuptial mass at 9 o'clock this morning in St. Joseph's church. The Rev. Father Paul, O.M. Cap., pastor, performed the ceremony and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Theo Steidl attended her sister as maid of honor and Greg Sitter, Oshkosh, acted as best man. During the mass Miss Marian Gerlach, a Zeta Tau Alpha sorority sister of the bride, sang three solos, "On This Day O Beautiful Mother," "Ave Maria" and "O Lord I Am Not Worthy."

A breakfast for the bride party was held at the Steidl home immediately after the ceremony. Following a short wedding trip the couple will be at home at 517 S. Locust street. Out-of-town guests at the wedding included the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Miller, and his sister, Miss Elaine Miller, Decatur, Ill.; and the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Steidl, Omro.

Mrs. Miller, who attended Lawrence college and is a graduate of Oshkosh State Teachers college, has been in charge of the circulation desk at Appleton Public Library. Mr. Miller who attended the University of Detroit is manager of United Grocers warehouse.

Thursday evening the Misses Carola Trettin, Orla Bellin and Ruth Meyer and Mrs. Earl Evans entertained the bride at dinner at Candle Glow tea room, and she was also the dinner guest of Miss Eda Nihlen and Miss Nell Chamberlain on Tuesday.

WED AT CHURCH

Meyer-Silp

Miss Mabel Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meyer, Kimberly, will become the bride of William Silp, son of Joseph Silp, 608 N. Superior street, in a candlelight ceremony at 7 o'clock this evening at Emmanuel Evangelical church. The Rev. G. H. Blum will perform the double ring ceremony. Attendees will be Mrs. Clarence Daelke, sister of the bride, Albert Silp, brother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Harold Staedt, cousin of the bridegroom, Miss Esther Polard and Mrs. Irving Ellenbecker. Ushers will be Clarence Daelke, Irving Ellenbecker and Harold Staedt.

During the ceremony three solos, "At Dawning," "Because" and "O Promise Me," will be sung by Mrs. Julius Stuyvenberg, Kimberly.

A wedding supper will be served at 5 o'clock this evening at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate families and members of the wedding party. A reception at Koehn's Palm Garden will follow the ceremony.

Mr. Silp and his bride will make their home at 608 N. Superior street. The bride is a graduate of Kimberly High school with the class of 1933. The bridegroom is employed by an Appleton concern.

Church School Workers to Attend Training Sessions

A community training school for church school workers will be held four nights, Jan. 30 and 31 and Feb. 1 and 2, at First Methodist church. Ten churches from Appleton, Neenah and Menasha already have signified their intention of cooperating in this venture, namely, First Congregational, Memorial Presbyterian First Baptist, Emmanuel Evangelical, All Saints Episcopal, Trinity English Lutheran, St. John Evangelical and Reformed and First Methodist of Appleton; First Methodist church, Neenah; First Congregational church, Menasha.

The school is open to all church school officers and teachers, church boards of education, presidents of organized classes and others interested in the work.

The leaders include people who are known nationally or throughout the state for their experience in training for church work. Dr. Paul Reynolds of Chicago, secretary of Christian education of the Congregational church, will direct workers with seniors and young people; Dr. William J. Bell of the Presbyterian board of Christian education will lead the workers with junior high school young people; Mrs. Daniel Stahmer, Green Bay, a trained junior leader with the Methodist church, will work with the juniors; and Mrs. Joseph Koffend, Appleton, a trained leader, will lead the workers with primary and beginner children. Dr. Thomas S. Kepler, professor of Bible and religion at Lawrence college, will conduct a Bible hour from 7:30 to 8:30 each evening on "Understanding and Teaching the Bible."

Pilgrim Fellowship Will Outline Plans For Social Meeting

Pilgrim Fellowship will meet at 7:30 Sunday night at the First Congregational church. The group will make plans for a social meeting and for other coming meetings. The Rev. Dascomb Forbush, new pastor of the church, will be present.

Moose Lodge To Entertain District Meet

THE Appleton lodge of Loyal Order of Moose and the local chapter of Women of the Moose will be host and hostess to fellow members from the fifth district at a quarterly district meeting Sunday in Appleton. Lodges to send delegations are from Green Bay, Clintonville, Kaukauna, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh and Appleton. About 100 persons are expected to attend.

While the men are holding initiation and hearing an address by their state president, Ralph Harrison, Edgerton, at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Moose hall, the women will meet for cards and entertainment at the Conway annex. A supper for both groups will be served by the women at the Moose hall, and in the evening there will be entertainment and dancing.

The men's committee includes Jack Sealy, William Nowell, Jr., Arthur Melby, George Simon and Claude Bowby, while the women's committee consists of Mrs. Clyde Cavert, chairman of the reception committee; Mrs. Frank Karweick, chairman of the kitchen; and Mrs. Cornelius Meyer, dining room chairman.

German Club Groups to Hold Social Meetings

Der Deutsche Verein, German club of Appleton High school, will gather for social meetings in two groups Monday evening. The first year students will meet at the home of Margaret Ogilvie, and the second year students will gather at the home of Miriam Carlson, 628 N. Leminwah.

Almost identical programs have been planned for the two groups. In addition to games and songs the entertainment will feature a book review of Nora Waln's "Reaching for the Stars" and a discussion of the German background in the cultural development of Milwaukee.

Carnival at Masonic Temple Ends Tonight

The Masonic carnival which has been in progress at the Masonic temple since Wednesday night will close at midnight tonight. This afternoon a children's matinee is being held. A large crowd attended the activities Friday evening. Charles Pond and George Limpert are co-chairmen of the carnival.

Holy Name Society to Hear Fr. Westerberger

The fifteenth annual banquet of Holy Name society of St. Joseph's church will take place Sunday evening at the parish hall. William J. Flitely will be toastmaster and the principal speaker will be the Rev. E. J. Westerberger, Ph.D., Green Bay, diocesan superintendent of parochial schools.

Appleton Civic Symphony orchestra will play during the dinner and there will be short talks by the spiritual director and the new and old presidents.

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
MANITOWOC—Appleton High school basketball team slipped a trifling in the Fox River Valley conference basketball race here last night when it dropped a 31 to 27 decision to Manitowoc. Both teams now claim two wins and four defeats for the conference season.

Appleton lost last night's game because too often it was too slow on the draw. There were too many times when the Shipbuilders feinted Terror off balance or out of position and then wheeled past them to the basket to make shots.

Aside from that, however, Appleton happened to meet the Ships when the latter was "hotter" than at any time this season. As the game opened, Manitowoc made five out of its first seven tries and in the first quarter it scored more points than it has tallied in a half most of the season.

Teams Also "Cold"
However, there were periods of the game when both teams were stoned cold. In the first half, Appleton got just two field goals although it tried three less shots than Manitowoc. The Ships, on the other hand, were frozen as far as field goals were concerned in the second quarter and for seven minutes in the third period. They snapped out of it for the last quarter and that decided the game.

Both teams were guilty of a lot of fouls and Manitowoc hung up 13 points via the free toss route while Appleton got 11. Appleton had 17 fouls and Manitowoc 14. Most of the Shipbuilders fouls were committed under the baskets in the fight for rebounds whereas the Terror's were guilty out on the floor. They usually were a half step behind someone on a break for the basket and "hooked" him or held in an effort to stop his progress. Appleton's slowness to act was most outstanding last night.

Burton and Lathrop tied for Appleton scoring honors with eight points each. Burton got three goals and two free throws while Lathrop got two field goals and four free shots. For Manitowoc, it was Champagne who did most of the heavy work. He flashed past the Terror's or beat them down the floor in a fast break for four goals and two free throws for 10 points.

Ships Lead 13-5
Krohn of Manitowoc scored three points on the first scoring play of the game. Then Champagne grabbed the ball on a tip which Appleton controlled and canned a shot. Wolfgram made the next one from the side of the court and the score was 7 to 1. Lathrop got Appleton's first and only basket of the period when he crossed over in front of the basket and took a pass from a mate to tally. Manitowoc scored two more baskets before the quarter ended when Steckmesser feinted Lathrop off balance and went past him to the hoop. The period ended 13 to 5 for the Ships.

Play was extremely ragged in the second quarter and for seven minutes neither team got a field goal. Blacher scored for the Terror's in the final minutes of the game while Manitowoc went without a goal. The Ships added five points on free throws during the period while Appleton got two free throws to add to Blacher's goal. The half ended 16 to 9 for the Ships.

Appleton began to cut the Manitowoc lead in the third quarter during which the Appleton defensive assignments were being carried out more according to Hoyle, and Manitowoc was finding the hoop elusive.

Burton pulled a pivot shot to give Appleton two points as the quarter opened. Heid added a free throw for the Terror's but Manitowoc got two. Then Kliefoth drove down the floor and scored a goal and when Burton followed up after Lathrop missed a free throw, Manitowoc's lead was only 20 to 17. About this time Burton hung a foul on Champagne as the latter scored Manitowoc's only goal and Champagne added the free throw. The score then was 23 to 17. The teams got a free throw each and Lathrop scored for Appleton after the boys staged a couple seconds of first class fumbling and bungling under the hoop. It made the score 24 to 20 for Manitowoc as the quarter ended.

The fourth period saw Appleton get two free throws and cut the lead to 24 to 22. Then Hansen worked a pivot play on the slowly reacting Terror's and scored and Champagne tossed a push shot and the Manitowoc lead was 28 to 22. Burton and Cooper pushed in baskets for Appleton and it appeared the Terror's might pull out in the final four minutes.

But Hansen pivoted around Rolins and scored and Manthey dumped a free throw. Appleton got a free throw in the meantime and then Burton left the game on four personals after what would have been clipping in football. There wasn't much chance after he passed from the picture.

Before the Truckers could score in the third period the Kaws had run their time to 30, and had a 35 to 13 lead going into the final quarter. At the beginning of the last period the Kaws staged the hottest streak ever seen on the local floor. Of nine successive shots, short and long, eight swished through, none touching the rim, to build up a 49 to 14 margin. Don Bisek led this attack with three baskets, his favorite 1-hand push shot never working better.

Foul shots enabled Clintonville to score three points in the last two minutes for their 19 total. The Kaws subs continued the attack, running the count from 49 to 55.

Barney Ross Is Pace Setter as New London Wins

Bulldogs Defeat East De Pere High in Non-Conference Game

BY BOB DESNOYER
DE PERE—Led by Barney Ross, a scrappy, lightning fast forward, New London high school of the Western division of the Northwestern Wisconsin conference trounced De Pere, Eastern division five, 34 to 19, in an exhibition game here last night.

The Bulldogs moved into an 8-6 advantage in the first quarter and had the upper hand all the way. The Redbirds finished the second period with four points to keep on the tail of the Bulldogs and left the floor on the short end of a 13 to 10 count. They then fell before rallies in the third and fourth quarters which went to the Bulldogs by wide margins.

Ross repeatedly gave a display of his speed after snaring a loose ball or intercepting a pass, by dribbling to the hoop. He got his first two field goals on passes that were deflected into his hands and later snatched the ball from a Redbird to go half the length of the court to hook a basket. Ross was top scorer with six field goals and four free throws for a total of 16 points.

Only three other boys scored from the floor for the Bulldogs. Harold Poes getting two shots, Walde Hammerberg and Gordon Meiklejohn, one apiece, but the trio and Bud Mavis pivoted up several points on fouls. Meiklejohn and Mavis dropped in three free throws apiece and Hammerberg got two.

The Bulldogs had a near perfect record from the free throw line, getting 14 points and missing only 2.

For a time in the third period, the Redbirds held the Bulldogs to their 3-point advantage. After Ross executed a free throw, Hermann popped in a basket, and Verber fired a long one after a shot by Ross and free throw by Meiklejohn that held the count to 17 to 14. Ross took a side shot, Poes got a gift and Poes dribbled fast with an intercepted ball to put the Bulldogs out ahead, 22 to 14, as the period ended. Ross collected seven points in the final quarter. Hammerberg counted on a field goal and free throw, and Mavis scored from the free throw line for the Bulldogs. Don Porath and Verber sank baskets, and Verber added a free throw for the Redbirds.

Hortonville Wins

Hortonville—Hortonville defeated Wrightstown last night 34-28 in a Little Nine conference game in the Western division. After trailing 10 to 9 at the end of the first period, Hortonville came back strong in the second quarter to score 10 points while holding Wrightstown to 2. This provided a margin which Wrightstown could not overcome.

Nagreen, forward, was high point man for Hortonville with 11 points while Bubolz counted 8 for Wrightstown.

In the preliminary, the Hortonville B team also was victorious, 20-13.

Brucker Signs 1940 Contract With Mack

Philadelphia—(AP)—Earl Brucker, veteran catcher of Connie Mack's Athletics, has signed his 1940 contract, officials of the Philadelphia American league baseball club announced. Brucker, a resident of San Diego, Calif., experienced a batting slump last season after consistently hitting better than .300 in previous seasons, but is regarded as a valuable handler of young pitchers.

Eau Claire Teachers Defeat River Falls

River Falls, Wis.—(AP)—Sparked by Krenz who made 24 points, Eau Claire State Teachers defeated River Falls State Teachers, 50 to 45, in a conference basketball game last night. Krenz left the game midway in the second half because of an injury. Kroger starred for the Falcons with 20 points. Eau Claire led at the half 29-17.

Before the Truckers could score in the third period the Kaws had run their time to 30, and had a 35 to 13 lead going into the final quarter. At the beginning of the last period the Kaws staged the hottest streak ever seen on the local floor. Of nine successive shots, short and long, eight swished through, none touching the rim, to build up a 49 to 14 margin. Don Bisek led this attack with three baskets, his favorite 1-hand push shot never working better.

Foul shots enabled Clintonville to score three points in the last two minutes for their 19 total. The Kaws subs continued the attack, running the count from 49 to 55.

Week-end Digest of Business Activity In Appleton and Vicinity

Workmen's Compensation Rates Down, Benefits Up, Says Burhop

Wausau — The cost of providing for those injured or killed in Wisconsin industry has been reduced by 22 per cent in the last 4 years, according to W. H. Burhop, Executive Vice President of the Employers Mutual Liability Insurance Company of Wausau. Furthermore, Mr. Burhop states, the benefits provided under the workmen's compensation law have not been similarly reduced, but instead, have been increased during the same 4 years.

Rates for workmen's compensation insurance have not kept up with other mounting costs of industry. The Wisconsin Insurance Commissioner has approved reductions each year for several years. It is interesting to note that while taxes, which go for administration and operation of other laws, have been increasing, the insurance rates which go toward discharging obligations under the workmen's compensation law, have been reduced.

Workmen's compensation rates, as approved each year by the State Insurance Commissioner, are uniform for all insurance carriers, and, since they are based on the experience of all the carriers, actually reflect the cost for care of industrial accident victims. Since 1917, rates in Wisconsin have been regulated according to an act of the legislature in that year. Experience is submitted each year by all insurance carriers to the Compensation Rating Bureau, which is supported entirely by the carriers and supervised by the Commissioner. Rates are derived from a tabulation of the experience submitted by the carriers to the Bureau.

If we go back to 1917, when the Wisconsin legislature passed the nation's first workmen's compensation law, we can see how far we have come. At that time the law's benefits were considerably less, and the rates were high for the protection afforded. Using the benefits of the original 1917 law as a base, the law is now 90 per cent more generous to the workman or his widow and orphans than it was at that time. The insurance rates, on the other hand, are only 28 per cent higher than they were in 1917.

Benefits Increase

In 1911, the highest amount a widow could receive under the law for the death of her husband, was $3000. Now the amount a widow may receive is limited only by the ages and number of dependents. A widow with 5 children ranging in ages from 1 to 5, for instance, would receive about $12,800. In 1911, the maximum compensation an injured man could receive per week was $22. Now the maximum is $21. Although the per cent of the wage payable has only increased from 68 per cent to 70 per cent, other benefits have increased in much greater proportion.

For instance, in 1911, there was no schedule of compensation for permanent partial disabilities, such as amputations. Now workmen are compensated according to a schedule in direct proportion to the severity of the partial disability. As for permanent disability, the amount receivable was formerly limited to $3000. At the present time there is no limit — compensation is continued for the lifetime of the permanently disabled workman.

The most significant expansion of the law took place in 1919, when the legislature changed the language of the act from "occupational accident" to "occupational injuries and diseases." This means that not only accidents are covered by the law, but occupational diseases and injuries as well. This includes the once dreaded disease of silicosis as well as any other ailment attributable to the employment of the worker.

Just as all other states followed Wisconsin in enacting a workmen's compensation law, later increasing its benefits, many likewise followed Wisconsin in making occupational diseases compensable under the law.

Gideon Society Will Discuss Activities

Chilton — The Gideon Society, whose purpose it is to place Bibles in hotel rooms and other institutions, will describe its work in the churches of this community Sunday morning. Members of the organization, all business men, will speak in the churches of Kiel, New Holstein and Chilton.

John Francis of West Allis will speak at the Chilton Trinity Presbyterian church at 9 o'clock and at the Ebenezer Reformed church at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning. Because of the inclement weather last Sunday, the annual meeting of Ebenezer Reformed church in Chilton was postponed and will take place during morning worship service Sunday. Officers will be elected.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION

Chilton — The Rev. G. F. Barthel, pastor of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church, town of Rantoul, who is ill at St. Elizabeth hospital, Appleton, received a blood transfusion Wednesday morning. The donor was a member of the blood donor's group which was organized last June by the members of the Calumet Council Knights of Columbus.

George J. Berger, who has been ill at St. Agnes hospital in Fond du Lac for the past four weeks returned home Tuesday, greatly improved.

A daughter was born Monday at a Sheboygan hospital to Dr. and Mrs. C. J. O'Donnell.

A son was born Tuesday at a Manitowish hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Guenther.

Van Rooy Explains Good Printing Is Business Builder

Superior Work as Necessary as Neat, Pleasant Salesmen

Salesmen are generally careful of their appearance because they know that first impressions are exceedingly important. A shabby, style of 1901 appearance does not lower customers' resistance.

These are important points every businessman needs to remember when evaluating office stationery and forms, believes the Van Rooy Printing Company, 127 N. Appleton street, in the Hotel Appleton Building. After proper consideration, if these business items are found to be below par, Van Rooy's advise immediate modernization and steps taken to beautify them.

Only skilled craftsmen can give the best printing service, this firm points out. Van Rooy calls attention to its long list of satisfied customers as proof of the fact that all its printers and designers are experts on jobs of all kinds. Particularly Van Rooy believes that it now has available one of the finest layout services and point out that great savings are to be had by taking advantage of it.

The completeness of its facilities enables Van Rooy to handle practically any kind of job regardless of size. Its equipment and personnel combined are sufficiently adequate for rapid production at no sacrifice in quality. Through its recent installation of a Kelly high-speed automatic press, perhaps the most modern in the valley, all types of commercial work including color printing can be turned out with guaranteed precision. The new press also makes possible a higher class of printing, bringing out halftones much clearer and offers the additional advantage of labor savings which, of course, are affected in the price quoted in the job.

An estimate of the cost of any printing work may be had without obligation by phoning J. M. Van Rooy at 1054.

Zander Head of Commerce Group

Succeeds Raymond Peters As President of Brillion Chamber

Brillion — At the annual meeting of the Brillion Chamber of Commerce at the city hall Thursday evening Elliot Zander was elected president to succeed Raymond Peters, and Michael Becker was elected vice president. Officers re-elected were: Treasurer, Charles Pritzl; secretary, Lawrence Lewis; and director Frank Kleiber. During the business meeting plans were made and a discussion was held on the second annual farmer's institute which is to be held Feb. 28 and 29 at the high school auditorium. E. W. Bonini is the chairman of the committee in charge.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Calumet County bank was held in the bank assembly room in Brillion Wednesday afternoon. The bank was organized in 1920 and in 1921 it received a 20-year charter from the state banking department. At the meeting it was voted to provide for a perpetual charter with the approval of the banking authorities. The following directors were reelected: Henry Becker, Arthur Schroeder, Alvin Wolfmeyer, Charles Nass, Otto Pienkner, Henry Horn and Otto Sticker. A talking motion picture, entitled "Your Money and Mine," was presented.

Mrs. Edgar Mueller was a hostess to the members of her bridge club at her home Tuesday evening.

Miss Johanna Schwartz entertained friends at bridge at her home Wednesday afternoon.

Glen Seehawer, proprietor of the Brillion Concrete Works, suffered a leg fracture in the preliminary basketball game at the high school gymnasium Tuesday evening.

Nelson Haller attended the funeral services for his brother, Attorney A. J. Haller at Red Wing, Minn., Wednesday.

The Brillion Fire Department was summoned to the Oscar Neuser cheese factory northeast of Brillion about 9:30 Thursday evening where a chimney fire had broken out. No serious damage was done. The department returned in about a half hour.

The Rev. and Mrs. John G. Siegle were called to the former's home at Chaska, Minn., on Wednesday evening because of the serious illness of Mr. Siegle's mother.

Members of the Birthday club surprised Mrs. Edward Keller at her home Tuesday afternoon in honor of her birthday anniversary. Bunco was played after which a lunch was served.

Mrs. A. F. Paustian entertained friends at bridge at her home Thursday evening. Those present were the Mesdames Frank Horn and daughter Miss Emma, Emil Reinhardt, Henrietta Mumm, Edward Janke, August Schaefer and Edwin Juno. High honors were received by Miss Emma Horn and Mrs. August Schaefer.

Mrs. Joseph Binsfeld entertained friends at bridge at her home on Wednesday evening. High honors were received by Mrs. Louis Mumm, Mrs. John Bartz and Mrs. Joseph Bursey and Mrs. Henry Thissen received the floater. Those present were the Mesdames Charles Pritzl, Helena Koch, S. T. Barnard, Michael Becker, Eugene Becker, Joseph Pritzl, A. J. Wagner, Joseph Burck, Louis Mumm, John Bartz, W. C. Schlei, Henry Thissen, Lloyd Pfeiffer, George Geiger, Michael Kleiber and Miss Anna Barnard.

When the going gets tough, it's there that the "greatest traction tires ever built" show their worth. These are the famous Firestone Ground Grip tires whose triple tread construction is shown above. Ground Grips are noted for getting through conditions where even chains fail to function, and there are sizes available at the Firestone Auto Supply & Service store, 700 W. College avenue, for every passenger car, truck and tractor. Like sturdy Firestone Champion tires (and the companion Firestone lines), extra power Firestone batteries and other Firestone equipment, Ground Grips can be purchased on the convenient Firestone budget plan. A Firestone battery, for example, can be bought for as little as $130, with trade, and on terms as low as 50 cents a week.

"This novel has a swell selling title, Fink! The author simply calls it 'The Book of the Year'!"

Puth Welding Is Best Way to Save Money, Add Value

Firm Has Most Complete Welder in Area; Works Anywhere

A recent development in the welding field now makes possible a great many things thought impossible a few years ago. Until very recently it was believed impossible to weld the sections of cast iron heating boilers many of which were discarded because of a crack or leak that might easily have been welded at a substantial saving in both time and labor. In a great many instances this can be done without even dismantling the boiler, stove or furnace.

Another great saving of time and labor is in the Automotive field where cracked cylinder blocks which have been frozen, can now be successfully welded in the car without even taking them out. So complete is the fusion of the welded metal with that of the block that if time is taken to polish and repaint it is impossible to determine where the block was cracked. The Puth Auto Parts, 827 W. College avenue, have the most complete welder in this part of the country. This machine manufactures its own current on the job and can do the job anywhere that a car can be driven.

Welding machinery is now powerful enough to thaw frozen pipes, even though they are buried under ground, by passing the welding current through the pipes for a few seconds. The pipe is warmed enough to melt the ice without any danger of fire as is the case when blowtorches are used.

Among some of the larger jobs completed by the Puth Auto parts are the Sewerage Digester Covers at Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna, and Manitowish. These are among the most particular kinds of welding for the reason that these covers must be gas tight and a great deal of the welding must be done in an overhead position. The covers at Oshkosh have about five miles of welded seams, all of which have to pass federal inspection.

Owners of anything made of metal that needs repair should be sure to consult Puth Auto Parts. Many broken or apparently worn metal pieces can be repaired as good as new, and in a great many instances made better than new at a surprisingly small cost. The reason that many tools can be repaired better than new is that after they are welded it is now possible to lay on a thin coating of a modern alloy that will increase the hardness many times and outwear the new tool. This service is available at all times, day or night.

Bellings Place Strong Emphasis On Prescriptions

Drug Store Maintains Outstanding Service for Community

Every time a prescription is filled at Bellings' Drugstore, 204 E. College avenue, one thought is uppermost in the minds of its pharmacists—the thought that two reputations and a life may depend on how faithfully instructions are carried out. The doctor's reputation, Bellings' own reputation, and the life of somebody's mother, father, sweetheart, or child are the important points which must be considered.

Pharmacy is a profession built on faith, Bellings' points out, and they are justifiably proud of the faith its customers have shown them through the many years they have served this community. Above everything else, however, Bellings' particularly value in prescription filling its reputation for honesty, accuracy, speed, skill, and the use of fine, pure drugs.

Doctors are aware of this fine reputation and they are confident that all of their "life-saving" orders will be always carried out here. Bellings' point out, that customers pay no extra premium for the use of pure drugs, its enviable reputation, on skill, and the endorsement of local physicians.

From the time prescriptions are presented at the Bellings store until they are returned to the customer never a minute is wasted in the compounding process, Bellings' assure. All prescriptions brought here are filled as quickly as they can safely be done but accuracy is never sacrificed for speed. Bellings' also place on any prescription in emergency or otherwise unless it is exactly as the doctor ordered.

A prompt delivery service is maintained by Bellings' and it is available day and night. The telephone number is 131.

One Is Beloved

hand crept up to her mouth. Broken sounds came from behind it. "Now, Sue, now, Sue! Pull yourself together, sweet! It had to come, you know. Allen was bound to marry one of these days, you must know that! And it seemed to him—I don't agree with him, but he claims he knows you better than anyone else does—it seemed to him easier to get the whole thing over with before he told you."

"Happy As A Kid"

The tears ran unheeded down her small face. "But he didn't tell me! He—he sent you to do it! Oh, Buddy, Buddy! To think you'd do this to me!"

He knelt beside her, wiping her eyes with his own big white handkerchief.

"He didn't send me at all, Sue. It just happened that I—that I was in his office this afternoon when they—when he came back. He was happy as a kid, and at the same time all shot to pieces about how you'd take the news—if you know what I mean. And, confound it! it seemed sort of a shame to spoil things for him right off the bat. So I offered—I said I was on my way here anyway and I'd take the edge off the news for him..."

She held her head very high but he could see her swallowing rapid sobs.

Sue, get hold of yourself!" he urged. "They'll be here any minute now. You don't want Allen — you don't want her to find you like this!"

"Just a minute, Bob!" For one breathless moment she leaned against him, the dear little dark head he loved pressed close to his heart. He tightened an arm about her comfortingly. "Give me just a minute!"

Presently she freed herself, mopped valiantly at her wet eyes.

"Who—who is it, Bob? Babs? No, it can't be Babs. She's been with me all afternoon. Ellen Massey? Who, Bob?"
